Zeppelins Kill 12 in England

GENEROUS HOST WAS SWIG

But, Really, the List of "Guests" at Legislator's Week-End Was Cause of Beacon Hill Denials

The most interesting of several lively developments today in the political furor over Simon Swig's week-end stag party was a persistent report at the State House that the Saturday night gathering at the Swig Summer home in Middletown, near Newport, was not the first one of its kind.

It was said today that recently there was a similar stag party at the Swig town home in Dorchester, at which several prominent members of the Legislature were present.

A statement today by Representative Harry C. Woodill of Melrose, who was at the Saturday night affair, contained a thumbnail description of the party, thus:

"It was a perfectly good party—something to drink, but that was all."

Speaker Channing H. Cox of the House said:

"From the statements of Mr. Swig and others in today's AMERICAN it is evident that I was not there. Mr. Swig's party has caused a lot of talk at the State House and it seems likely

LINER LAPLAND DODGES U-BOATS

New York, March 6.—Scarred by severe gales, the White Star liner Lapland reached port today from Liverpool with 236 passengers. It was reported that the liner went to the north of Ireland to avoid submarines. A double watch of twelve men was stationed in the bow while in the danger zone and no wireless messages were sent during the voyage.

ATTEMPT TO BLOW UP POSTOFFICE

Cincinnati, March 6.—Enough ether to blow up the postoffice building if it had exploded was secretly posted in the mails here today. There was no mark on the packages which were mailed in several districts. Inquiries among large chemical houses failed to give government agents any clew.

The New York sub-treasury gained $640,000 from banks on Saturday, making a cash net gain of $3,582,000 since Friday last.

40 BOMBS DROPPED IN RAID

Belief Grows That Germans Seek British Grand Fleet with Zeppelins; 3 Balloons in the Attack

By International News Service.

London, March 6.—Twelve persons were killed and thirty-three injured in the Zeppelin raid over the northeast coast of England last night, it was officially announced this afternoon. Three Zeppelins took part in the raid, instead of two as originally reported. Forty bombs were dropped.

That the German Admiralty is feeling with Zeppelins in an effort to locate the British grand fleet is the belief which exists in England today, as a result of the queer behavior of the Zeppelins which took part in the raid. The Germans penetrated far to the north and followed a zigzag course which, at times, took them far out over the sea.

It is believed to be the hope of the German Admiralty of locating the grand fleet and then attacking the dreadnaughts with bombs.

OFFICIAL REPORT.

The following statement was given out by the Admiralty:

"The number of Zeppelins taking part in the raid is believed to have been three. After crossing the coast the airships took various courses, and from the devious nature of their flight the pilots were apparently uncertain as to their bearings.

"The area visited included Yorkshire, Lincolnshire, Rutland, Huntingdon, Cambridgeshire, Norfolk, Essex and Kent. About forty bombs were dropped.

"Altogether the casualties so far ascertained amount to three men, four women and five children killed and thirty-three persons wounded. The material damage to dwellings and houses in the destroyed, one office, one public house and several shops partly destroyed. An ambulance was also damaged."

The eight counties include nearly the whole area of the northeast, east and southeast coast. Yorkshire, Lincolnshire, Norfolk, Essex and Kent are on the North Sea. Cambridgeshire, Rutland and Huntingdon are inland from the mouth of the Thames.

PENETRATED 75 MILES.

The northern border of Kentshire to Yorkshire is approximately 160 miles. It is 130 miles from London to Yorkshire. The Zeppoline penetrated from seventy-five to eighty-five miles inland from the coast.

"The approach of the Zeppelins was heralded by ships at sea which flashed wireless warnings," says a Central news dispatch. "Immediately afterward the sky was lighted up by incendiary bombs, and two terrific reports followed. Snow was falling fast, and the people crowded into the snow-filled streets, looking upward through the storm. Several houses were demolished by one bomb. At one place a mother and four children were killed outright!"

Many trains arriving from the North of England were late today, and it was believed that the railway tracks had been damaged by bombs from the Zeppelins.

Latest War Bulletins

Athens, March 6.—A large Turkish ammunition factory built in the Palestine village, which occupies the site of the ancient city of Samaria, was destroyed by an explosion Sunday, according to advices from Constantinople. Many were killed, some of the victims being burned to death.

Lisbon, March 6.—In anticipation of war with Germany the Portuguese government has adopted strong defensive measures. Lights in the harbors and in the vicinity of dangerous reefs are forbidden in order to prevent the entrance of enemy vessels. All the Portuguese warships are closely guarded.

Rome, March 6.—A Cairo dispatch to the Giornale d'Italia states that British aviation scouts have reported the evacuation of Palestine and Lybia by Turkish troops, whose leaders have abandoned any idea of invading Egypt.

Petrograd, March 6.—Russian torpedo boats have bombarded Trebizond, Turkey's important fortified city in Asia Minor, on the Black Sea, the Admiralty announced today. Several Turkish ships in the harbor were destroyed by shells from the torpedo boats, which withdrew after accomplishing their mission. None of the attacking vessels were damaged, though the Turkish land batteries replied energetically.

Constantinople, March 6.—Heavy fighting is in progress in Mesopotamia between Turkish troops and the forces trying to relieve the British soldiers besieged in Kut-el-Amara. The British relief expedition received large reinforcements on February 21, and shortly afterward launched its attempt to move forward.

Amsterdam, March 6.—A dispatch from Maestricht reports that during the last two days 40,000 fresh German troops have been sent to reinforce the Teutons on the Ypres front in Flanders. These forces include cavalry and Landsturm infantry.

POOLROOM SUIT VERDICT AGAINST HOTEL ESSEX

Robert H. Kemp, a Brockton shoemaker, who claimed to have lost money in a fake poolroom at the Hotel Essex, was awarded $6,110.40 by a jury in the seventh session of the Superior Court, in a sealed verdict which was opened by Judge Sanderson today.

Kemp sued the owner of the Essex for $5,386, charging that on October 31 or November 1, 1913, he went to rooms 280 and 282 on the ninth floor of the Essex, where he passed $260 in cash and a draft for $5,000 on a horse named Alfalfa. He said the place was fitted up as a poolroom with a board on the wall bearing the names of race horses.

The management of the hotel declared it was not aware of the nature of the business transacted in the rooms. When the jury brought in its verdict today, after being out since Friday, Judge Sanderson asked:

"Mr. Foreman, did you find that gaming was going on in the hotel with the knowledge of the defendant?"

"Yes sir, we did," replied the foreman.

LIVELY MINING AND GUN DUELS AT VERDUN

London, March 6.—Violent mining and artillery duels purled the fighting in the region of Verdun during the night. The infantry on both sides in the gigantic struggle were held in check during the use of the more destructive methods of mines and heavy guns.

The artillery fire was particularly severe on the left bank of the Meuse, according to the French report. French batteries bombarded the Germans' point of passage. To the Argonne French guns also bombarded different points in Chepny forest and the main road in that sector held by the Germans.

The text of the French communique follows:

"In the Argonne we bombarded different

SINKING AFFECTS CRISIS

British Steamer Masunda Sent to Bottom in Mediterranean, It Is Believed, by Submarine

Washington, March 6.—The British steamer Masunda, with two Americans reported as being among her passengers, has been sunk in the Mediterranean, according to dispatches from London today.

All the passengers and crew were saved. Nevertheless, grave fears were expressed that the incident would precipitate a crisis with the Teutonic powers.

For this is the first vessel with Americans aboard known to have been sunk since Germany's new submarine policy went into effect March 1.

It was assumed in London that the vessel was sunk by a submarine. It was further considered probable that the ship was armed, for Great Britain has made it a practice to arm most of her merchant vessels except those which touched at American ports.

UNIVERSALLY ARMED

Vessels cruising to Indian ports have been almost universally armed, and the Masunda sailed from Bangkok for England, by way of the Suez and the Mediterranean.

The only thing, it was considered, that would prevent a crisis with Germany—if shown that it was torpedoed—would be the proof that the ship was warned and her passengers and crew given time to escape.

Whether or not warning was given does not appear in the first dispatches.

If there was no warning, then the submarine that sank the Masunda went directly counter to President Wilson's attitude. The President has laid down the rule that any attack without warning which puts in jeopardy the life of an American would force him to call Germany to account.

Whether the Americans on the Masunda were injured or not, the mere fact of their having been put in jeopardy—assuming no warning was given—would be sufficient to violate the President's definition of the rights of Americans.

LONDON DISPATCH

The dispatch from London telling of the sinking of the Masunda was as follows, and gave no details. It read as follows:

The British steamer Masunda, 4,052 tons, has been sunk, presumably by a submarine, in the Mediterranean. All on board, including a number of passengers, were saved.

The announcement of the loss of the vessel gave no details, but it was 462 feet long and 52 feet noon that there were two Americans on the Masunda, which sailed from Bangkok on January 28. Its route lays through the Suez Canal and the Mediterranean.

The Masunda was built in 1909. It was reported here this afternoon that the Turks are seeking a separate peace are well founded.

TO INVOLVE GERMANY AND U. S.

Senator Jones Quotes Prof. Royce of Harvard to Show Attempt to Break Diplomatic Relations

Washington, March 6.—The House Rules Committee this afternoon agreed on the rule under which the McLemore resolution, warning Americans off armed ships, will be brought up in the House tomorrow.

The rule provides for five and a half hours of debate, one and one-half hours of which will be on the rule itself and the other four on the resolution proper. At the end of the debate the rule provides that the way be cleared to bring a motion to table it.

Washington, March 6.—Debate over the international situation broke out with renewed violence in the Senate again today.

Senator McCumber of North Dakota started the fight by having read into the record an editorial from the New York Times which he vigorously arraigned for misrepresenting the position of the fourteen Senators who voted against tabling the Gore resolution last Friday.

"When we get ready to go to war there will be no division in the Senate

PROVIDENCE HAS AUTOMOBILE ROW FIRE

Providence, March 6.—A rush of loans on her bank, which burned most of her bank, was the first warning of fire to Mrs. James McKenna as she sat reading today in her rooms on the fourth floor of the Sherbrook Apartments in the heart of Automobile Row.

The blaze started from a volunteer on the first floor, which is occupied by repair shops and spread with the greatest rapidity through the entire building, causing a loss estimated by the police at $10,000.

The three upper floors are used as the Sherbrook Apartments, of which Mrs. McKenna is the owner. The occupants of the rooms said the escape of the fire must have been aware of the fire and the men and Mrs. McKenna rescued the aged in safety. Occupants of the basement Fire Station and the Providence Gas Company office, as well as two other repair shops, carried their furniture across the street.

Because of the proximity of a number of gasoline buildings, forming automobile concerns, three alarms were sounded, but the firemen prevented the flames from spreading.

CLEVELAND EX-MAYOR NAMED

Garrison's Successor Always a Democrat and a Staunch Supporter of President Wilson

Cleveland, O., March 6.—Newton D. Baker, former Mayor of Cleveland, received notification that he had been appointed Secretary of War by President Wilson.

By International News Service.

Washington, March 6.—Newton D. Baker, former Mayor of Cleveland, will succeed Lindley M. Garrison as Secretary of War.

When Secretary to the President Tumulty was asked whether advices from Cleveland that the appointment had been tendered to former Mayor Baker, he at first refused to answer.

When told later that Mr. Baker himself admitted that he had accepted the appointment, Mr. Tumulty said:

"If Mayor Baker has accepted, his nomination is certain. The President has tendered the appointment to him, it is likely that the nomination will be sent to the Senate within a day or two."

Baker has always been a student and most recently became interested in the necessity for preparedness. But he is known to be in accord with President Wilson's policy of national defense and is believed to be in sympathy with the congressional plan for the federalization of the National Guards, other than in the organization of a continental army, as outlined by former Secretary of War Lindley M. Garrison, whom he succeeds.

Baker first sprang into prominence as a disciple of the late Tom L. Johnson, Cleveland's fighting Democratic Mayor.

Newton Diehl Baker, former mayor of Cleveland, was born in Martinsburg, West Virginia, December 3, 1871, the son of Newton Diehl and Mary (Duncan) Baker. He received a degree of B. A. from Johns Hopkins in 1892, and of LL. B. from Washington and Lee University in 1894.

Mr. Baker was married to Elizabeth Leopold of Pottstown, Pennsylvania, July 5, 1902. From 1898 to 1902 he was private secretary to Postmaster-General Wilson and in 1897 began the practice of law at Martinsburg, West Virginia.

From 1910 to 1912 Mr. Baker was city solicitor of Cleveland, and served two terms as mayor, from 1912 to 1914 and from 1914 to 1916.

Mr. Baker always has been a Democrat and during President Wilson's first primary campaign was active in his behalf, taking the stump for him and speaking in Boston as well as many other cities.

PARTED FROM WIFE, ENDS LIFE BY GAS

Worcester, March 6.—Andrew Anderson, seventy-five, whose wife left him five years ago, was asphyxiated today in his room at No. 21 Whipple street.

The Andersons had been married thirty years, and it is said Mr. Anderson has been increasingly despondent since his wife's desertion. The note of one was delivered by person in the house, who forced his door and found him lying dead on the bed with the gas jets open.

ferent points in Chapy forest and the Avocourt-Malancourt road.

"In the region to the North of Verdun no infantry action was reported during the night. There was a violent artillery battle on the left bank of the Meuse and also an intermittent cannonade in the sector to the west of Douaumont and in the Woevre region. Our batteries actively shelled the enemy's points of passage.

"The night was calm on the rest of the front."

The Berlin report says the region northeast of Vermelles, between Labassee and Arras, has been the scene of a heavy mining battle and also attacks by the English. The British attacks were repulsed.

The following is the text of the German official statement:

"West front—There were lively mining engagements northeast of Vermelles. Minor attacks were delivered by English infantry in their neighborhood, but were repulsed. On the eastern bank of the Meuse the day passed in comparative quiet. We captured yesterday and Saturday during minor engagements fourteen officers and 934 men.

"East front—There has been no incident of importance.

"Balkan front—There is nothing to report."

INTERNED SAILORS SING GERMAN SONGS

German songs were sung by twenty-five sailors from the Kronprinzessin Cecilia before the Convocation of Episcopal Ministers in Pilgrim Hall today, under the direction of Herman Furst, and Samuel Usher, president of the Freemen's Friend Society of Hanover street, told of the work of the society to lighten the tedium of internment here for the German sailors.

CLEMENCEAU PAPER SEIZED IN FRANCE

Paris, March 6.—Homme Enchaine, edited by Georges Clemenceau, president of the Senate Committee on Army and Foreign Relations, has been seized by the authorities. No specific reason for the action has been given. The new afternoon paper, the Hour, has been suspended for a week.

WAR SUMMARY

The British steamer Masunda, with two Americans reported aboard, has been sunk in the Mediterranean, probably by a submarine. Whether warning was given is uncertain. All were saved. If there was no warning the Masunda incident may precipitate our crisis with the Teutonic powers.

The German raider Moewe has come home to Wilhelmshaven with booty and prisoners, and a toll of some 50,000 tons of shipping to her credit. Her exploits, in dramatic interest, equal those of the Emden, and her success in twice running the British "blockade" in the North Sea tends to discredit the vigilance of the British fleet there.

Three Zeppelins have raided the northeast section of England, according to official reports from London today.

Forty bombs were dropped, and twelve were killed and thirty-three wounded, the early tabulations showed. Material damage was unimportant.

The Zeppelins zigzagged in their flight, according to the official statement; and London believes they were searching for the anchorage of the British grand fleet, preparatory to a bombing attack. Rosyth, the great English naval base in the Firth of Forth, is further north than the point reached by the Zeppelins.

Verdun is quiet again, the French artillery furnishing the only activity. It appears likely that the Germans have definitely abandoned their attack here, at least for the present.

The Russians opened an attack near Illoukst by exploding a number of mines, occupying some craters and making other slight gains—according to their official bulletin. Berlin says the Russian attack at this point "could not be carried out."

The Caucasus and the Italian front were quiet, the Russian bulletin saying of the former only: "Our pursuit of the Turk continues."

ALLIES HAVE LOST 33 SUBMARINES

London, March 6.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Amsterdam says the Frankfurter Zeitung declares that the entente allies must have lost during the war thirty-three submarines—Great Britain nineteen, France eight, Italy four and Russia two. Only three of these boats are alleged by the newspaper to have been destroyed by German warships.

Washington, March 6.—The U. S. Supreme Court today held that the Florida anti-trading stamp law is constitutional.

NORWEGIAN VESSEL SINKS, SEVEN DROWN

LEAGUE FOR ALLIES ASSAILED IN SENATE

and very little in the country," declared Senator McCumber. "But this country does not want its citizens to lead it needlessly into war. This country is patriotic, but not jingoistic. If we go to war the victories will not be won by the jingo, the bully or the braggart, but by the greatness of the American people, fighting for a cause approved by their hearts and consciences.

"The true American patriotic spirit demands that no American citizen should by reckless assertion of his rights precipitate the country into war. An American who does so cannot be a true patriot."

NOTES PROF. ROYCE'S

Senator Jones of Washington scored the Citizens' League for America and the Allies, organized in New York.

He said he wondered if the writer of the Times' editorial was a member of that league. The purpose of the league, he declared, was to send out propaganda and foment agitation to force a diplomatic rupture between the United States and Germany.

He quoted from an address by Professor Josiah Royce of Harvard University at Tremont Temple, Boston, on January 30, in which it was plainly stated that the purpose of the league was to disrupt the diplomatic relations of the United States and Germany.

"I'm not working in the interest of the United States and its people?" asked Senator Jones. "Is he maintaining the strict neutrality prescribed by the President?"

Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania, one of the sixty-eight senators who voted to table the Lane resolution, declared the Times editorial did not represent the attitude of "either the sixty-eight or the fourteen."

GALLINGER FOR NEW VOTE.

Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire, the minority leader, took the floor to urge again that the Senate vote directly on the issue of warning Americans off armed merchantmen.

"This is just as reasonable as the President's warning to Americans to keep out of Mexico," declared Gallinger.

Senator Pomerene of Ohio read a letter written to him by Secretary of State Lansing denying that the British government warned its citizens of belligerent merchantmen during the Russo-Japanese War.

In the House Speaker Clark made it clear today that tabling the McLemore resolution would be disposing of it unfavorably and not merely deferring action until a later date. He made the ruling in response to a parliamentary inquiry by Representative Gardner of Massachusetts.

This was taken to mean that tabling the resolution, now considered certain, will end requests for a disposition of the entire problem "on its merits."

SPEAKER CLARK FINDS HOUSE DIVIDED INTO THREE GROUPS

By CHAMP CLARK,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Washington, March 6.—The situation in the House is this:

There are three groups in the House—those who think the McLemore resolution ought to be voted upon, those who think it ought to be voted down and those who think that the report of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, laying the resolution on the table, had ended the matter—temporarily, at least.

Whether that report satisfies anybody, it is the only conclusion that could command a majority vote of the committee because of the divergence of the views of members.

Several propositions were offered, several were voted on, but no proposition except to lay on the table could, or did, receive a majority vote of the committee, and, of course, it takes a majority of those present and voting, if there be a quorum present, to make any report.

It was a tough job for that committee to make any sort of report, owing to difference of views.

The same may be said for the Committee on Rules, with this addendum: That any rule they bring in must be in order under the general rules or be knocked out on a point of order.

REPLY TO CRITICS.

It is dead easy for some miniature Solomon, not in Congress, and responsible to nobody, and for nothing, to decide questions, great and small, right off the bat, without a moment's thought, and to abuse Congressmen who are charged with great and grave responsibilities, for not settling questions affecting the interests of 100,000,000 Americans instanter and off-hand.

Some folks in their vagueness and excitement seem to think that the House should have no rules, and, if it does have them, nobody ought to pay any attention to them—which would simply convert the House into a disorderly mob in which "confusion worse confounded" would prevail.

Some swear at Congress about the fact that the Rules Committee cannot report today.

Under the rules, first and third Mondays are set aside for consideration of bills on "the unanimous consent calendar," for "motions to suspend the rules" and for "motions to discharge committees" in the order named. It has been held that nothing else is in order on those days until all those classes of business is cleaned up.

CONFERENCE PURPOSE.

The long conference in the Speaker's room Saturday was not to decide on what report the Committee on Foreign Affairs should make, for it had already agreed on its report, but to devise a rule which the Speaker would hold in order under the general rules and practices of the House.

If no accident happens, the matter will come up tomorrow on the report of the Rules Committee, and it will be disposed of under the general rules.

Unless the previous question is defeated, there can be at this juncture no vote directly on the McLemore resolution. To vote on a motion to table may satisfy everybody, nobody or somebody, but in the present posture of affairs that seems to be all that is attainable.

Any member hereafter can introduce a resolution of any sort pertaining to the question, in controversy, and have a vote on any report that the Committee on Foreign Affairs would bring in.

UNREST IN ITALY OVER TAX BURDEN

By International News Service.

Geneva, March 6.—There is considerable unrest in Italy over the tax burden, which is getting heavier and heavier, say travelers who have just arrived from Rome. Since October, 1914, more than $80,000,000 fresh taxation has been imposed. Prices for the necessities of life are steadily rising.

Athens, via Paris, March 6.—The chief of police reports that Bulgarian soldiers have attacked Greek frontier guards in the neighborhood of Macikovo, near the Greco-Serbian frontier.

Says Russians Are Heaviest Losers in War

By International News Service.

Berlin, March 6.—The Russian Socialist, M. Tcheidse, views Russia's prospects in the war most pessimistically, according to the Trans-Ocean News Bureau.

He declared in the Duma that Russia's casualties in the war were greater than those of all the other belligerents together. Losses on the battlefield, however, were small compared with those caused by starvation, he stated.

The government was responsible for the loss of those millions, he declared, adding:

"Russia has now been reduced to such a state that after the war she will be a factor of no importance."

He said that during the eighteen months of the war lies and calumnies had been spread and that piracy and treason has reigned.

"The real object of the Entente powers is not to liberate Europe from Prussian militarism, but to further the policies of annexation and imperialism," he continued. "At the most critical moment we find ourselves with no railroads and face complete demoralization of transportation.

"We have a government whose incompetence and corruptness are classical. The government is mobilizing industry and industry is mobilizing to rob the people."

AMERICANS FREE TO LEAVE SOFIA

Washington, March 6.—The State Department today was notified that reports of the interning at Sofia, Bulgaria, of Mrs. Walter Parwell, a Chicago newspaper woman, Dr. Harry Forbes and a Miss Mitchell, all Americans, were untrue. Special Agent Finsten, who was detailed to make an investigation of the reports, reported that the Americans were free to go any time.

MOHAMMEDAN HOLY WAR A FAILURE

By International News Service.

Rome, March 6.—The Mohammedan holy war, from which Turkey expected great things, has proved a failure, says the Rome wireless. It is reported that many Mussulman priests are carrying on a violent agitation against a continuation of the conflict. The Sheik-ul-Islam, head of the Mohammedan creed, threatens to resign.

BRITISH VESSEL IS SUNK BY SUBMARINE

London, March 6.—The British steamship Ben-y-Gloe has been sunk, presumably by a submarine, according to a dispatch to Lloyds. The crew was saved.

RAIDER MOEWE SAFE IN PORT IN GERMANY

Berlin, March 6.—The German sea raider Moewe has returned safely to her home port, "somewhere in Germany." Her commander, Captain Count Dohna-Schlodeiks, reported the capture or sinking during the venturesome and romantic cruise of thirteen British, one French and one Belgian vessel. Mines laid by the Moewe resulted in the sinking, among other vessels, of the British battleship King Edward VII.

Aboard as booty the Moewe brought 1,000,000 marks in gold bars captured from the British steamship Appam, which was sent into Newport News as a prize under command of Lieutenant Hans Berg.

Captives aboard the Moewe when she arrived were thirty-three British naval officers and sailors and 166 members of crews of captured merchant vessels.

Count Dohna-Schlodtie and his crew are the heroes of Germany today. All the Berlin papers pay tribute to the exploits of the Moewe and its gallant commander and sailors. German naval experts declare the successful return of the raider to a home port was its greatest feat.

Bestowal of the Iron Cross upon commander and crew is only one of the honors to be given the able commander and his men. The Count, it is announced, has been invited to visit Emperor William at headquarters, while the home town of the sailors will celebrate the heroes' return with elaborate ceremonies.

Announcement of the return of the Moewe was made officially by the naval general staff here. The official statement follows:

"After a successful cruise of many months, the Moewe, commanded by Frigate Captain Count Dohna-Schlodtiek, returned Sunday to her home port, having aboard four British officers, twenty-nine sailors and 186 members of crews of enemy steamship, including 193 Indians, as prisoners, and 1,000,000 marks ($250,000) in gold bars.

"During her cruise the Moewe captured thirteen British, one French and one Belgian vessel, representing a total tonnage of 57,535. Most of the vessels were sunk and the remainder were taken as prizes of war to neutral ports.

"The Moewe also engaged in mine-laying operations at various points on enemy coasts which resulted in the loss of the British battleship King Edward VII.

If your business requires trucking near this Atlantic Avenue depot, by all means let us prove to you the many advantages of this Continuous-Power-Service. It is the logical answer to quick, economical city trucking problems. Briefly, the greatly reduces initial cost and operating cost; furnishes practically unlimited mileage; eliminates battery worries; permits exchange of batteries in ten minutes; affords daily inspection; assures continuous service and places electric trucking beyond competition in its chosen field—the city and its suburbs.

The Atlantic Avenue Battery Service Station has facilities for garaging scores of trucks, and battery service for many more.

Just digest a few facts about Electric Trucks. They often do the work at one-half the cost of horse trucking. On the average they last at least twice as long as a gas truck—that is, the depreciation is half that of gas trucks. The cost of attendance and supervision is one-third that of gas trucks. An Electric is almost never laid up for repairs. Electric power costs much less than gas per mile—also a gas engine runs idle a good deal of the time, while an Electric uses power only when running.

In brief, electric trucking comes closer to maximum efficiency, dependability and economy than any other kind of trucking.

Let us send you facts on this Service. They will open your eyes to a new and better method of trucking. You can know the cost per mile before you buy your truck.

SAVE MEN ADRIFT 4 DAYS

The United Fruit Company's steamer Esparta arrived in Boston today with thirteen officers and crew of the former Boston five-masted schooner Margaret Haskell, which was abandoned in a sinking condition off the Florida coast on Sunday, February 27. The thirteen men, after being in an open motor boat four days, were picked up Thursday evening, March 2, just before dark.

The men suffered terribly from exposure, hunger and exhaustion, but are now in good shape. Their include Captain James A. Loesch and Mate J. B. Hammer of Brooklyn. Engineer Augustus Johansen. Steward Oea Fuugli and nine colored sailors. Fuugli was steward on the steamer Maryland, which was sunk by a mine in the North Sea last year.

The arrival of the Esparta with the Haskell's crew brought the first news of the loss of the schooner to Boston. The Haskell was recently sold by its local owners to New York parties. The vessel left Pensacola, Fla., late in February, laden with $200,000 worth of lumber and barrelled resin, consigned to the Italian government.

The New York owners collected $67,000 freight money before the Haskell sailed. The vessel itself was valued at $70,000, so the freight charter was within $3,000 of the value of the schooner. This $67,000 charter stands as one of the highest ever paid for transatlantic use of a sailing vessel of that size. It is another instance of the record freight rates on shipping due to war risks.

When the Haskell's crew came up over the Esparta's rail Captain Dobbins of the Esparta recognized in Captain Loesch an old neighbor and fellow-church member in their home district in Brooklyn. That made the rescue particularly gratifying to Captain Dobbins.

Soon after leaving Pensacola the Haskell encountered gales. The hull was pounded and strained until it sprung aleak. The pumps were worked, but resin barrels broke and resin choked the pumps. The chains on the lumber deck load snapped and loose timber shifted so that until the crew was in constant danger.

On Saturday night, February 26, Captain Loesch decided that safety required he should abandon the schooner if the gale did not abate over night.

Eleven men went into a 26-foot power boat and two in the dory, with some food and water. The Haskell was gradually settling.

The refugees tried to keep their boats in the lee of the still floating schooner, but the motor boat's engine stopped and they were blown away from the Haskell. Monday they repaired the engine and made back toward the derelict, hoping to board it for more food. They were unable to get aboard in the high sea, however. The two men in the dory transferred to the power boat and the latter was headed toward the Florida coast, leaving the derelict Haskell awash.

Fishermen, 9 Hours in Boat, Picked Up

The fishing schooner Elsie came in today with two men picked up after being nine hours afloat in an open dory in the face of a northwest gale.

The Elsie, Captain Manuel Correao, had a strenuous experience when, after picking up the two men, she ran into a sixty-five-mile gale, being knocked once clean on her beam ends and losing all dories.

The rescued men, Fred Moreau and Geory Flares, were from the fishing schooner Francis F. Mesquito, and lost their vessel in a fog early Thursday morning.

They were rescued after an all-day fight to keep afloat and to keep from freezing.

Girl Chum of Texas Bride, Who Confessed to Slaying, Is Missing

©PHOTOGRAPH BY INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE

Miss Lois Guion, confidential friend and chum of Mrs. Katherine V. Harrison, the young Texas bride, who has confessed to the murder of W. L. Warren, has disappeared from her home in Fort Worth, Texas. Friends predict that if Miss Guion goes on the stand she will create a sensation.

Fort Worth, Tex., March 6.—Search was continued today for Miss Lois Guion, confidante and chum of Mrs. Katherine V. Harrison, Mrs. Harrison is the young bride of a nephew of Senator Culberson, who confessed to slaying her alleged betrayer, W. R. Warren.

Miss Guion disappeared from her home in this city, and even her close friends have no information as to her whereabouts.

The missing girl's testimony is considered of the utmost importance by the authorities, who are very desirous of locating her. Those familiar with the case predict that if she does go on the stand her evidence will have an important bearing on the outcome of the case.

Interest in the remarkable tragedy is high in Texas. The State authorities are inquiring diligently into Mrs. Harrison's history, with a view to vigorous prosecution.

MAN OVERCOME BY SMOKE IS RESCUED

Charles Kenney was rescued, unconscious from inhaling smoke, from his room at No. 83 Lambert avenue, Roxbury, when fire broke out in the room early today. The rescuers were District Chief William J. Gaffey and Hosemen George Donnelly and John Devine. The room was on the ground floor and they broke in the window with a sixty-five-mile gale, being knocked once clean on her beam ends and losing all dories.

The rescued men, Fred Moreau and Geory Flares, were from the fishing schooner Francis F. Mesquito, and lost their vessel in a fog early Thursday morning.

They were rescued after an all-day fight to keep afloat and to keep from freezing.

TWO STABBED IN FIGHT OVER NICKEL

Lowell, March 6.—A quarrel over five cents in a card game was said by the police today to have led to assault, with intent to murder, upon Nicholas Muscatelli and his brother John, by Nicholas Verolla of Lawrence. Verolla was held in $10,000 bail in the city court today for a continued hearing, pending the result of stab wounds inflicted upon the Muscatelli brothers, who are at St. John's Hospital.

RAP FLEISCHER ON EVACUATION DAY TALK

Prominent citizens of South Boston expressed indignation today at the statement of Dr. Charles Fleischer that St. Patrick's or Evacuation Day, March 17, should be celebrated as Anglo-Saxon Day.

Dr. John S. Lane, prominent in South Boston affairs, said:

"Dr. Fleischer must lack common sense, if he made a statement like that. We might as well attempt to lo away with the Fourth of July or the 17th of June. Evacuation Day means a lot to the people of Boston because it marks a decisive point in the war of the Revolution. I am sure the people of this district would not hear to the name being changed."

P. A. Foley of the Clan-Na-Gael said:

"The less comment made on a statement of this kind the better. I think that Dr. Fleischer should mind his own business."

James F. Keyes said:

"I always thought Dr. Fleischer a broad-minded man, but he is entirely wrong in this assertion. We might as well do away with all our holidays which commemorate events in the history of our country."

James E. Coveney said:

"Dr. Fleischer needs more common sense. The day has been celebrated in South Boston for many years, and we will continue to celebrate it, no matter what he or anyone else thinks. I think he shows himself to be possessed of narrow principles, particularly when you remember how his own race has been persecuted."

ORPET TO FIGHT AN EARLY TRIAL

Chicago, March 6.—A dispute over the time for the trial of Will H. Orpet, accused of the murder of Marian Frances Lambert was expected today when the Lake County Grand Jury took up the investigation of the tragedy. Attorneys for the defence announced that they would insist upon a postponement of several weeks. State's Attorney Ralph Judy said he would demand that the trial begin not later than one week from today.

Everyone connected with the case was confident that after hearing the evidence today the Grand Jury would return an indictment charging Orpet with the murder of the pretty high school girl who had been his sweetheart. Fifteen witnesses were to be examined.

Dorchester Fire.

Damage set at $2,000 was done to the three-story apartment house at No. 15 Helen street, Dorchester, by a fire today. The building was occupied by the families of Isaac Brooks, the owner, and Moses Ben Susan. The origin of the fire is unknown.

GIRLS GROW UP TOO FAST

By Dorothy Dix

It is a queer and cruel commentary on modern life that all of the actors in the two sensational murders that are occupying the public attention at the present moment are mere children, and that both of these murders were crimes of passion.

At Lake Forest, Illinois, Marian Lambert, an eighteen-year-old high school girl, committed a killing because William Orpet, the twenty-year-old boy who had betrayed her, refused to marry her, or else she was slain by her boy lover, who was tired of her and who wanted to be rid of her.

In Fort Worth, Texas, Katharine Harrison, a fifteen-year-old girl, deliberately decoyed an elderly man who had wrecked her to a lonely place where she shot him dead, and in taking this vengeance was aided and abetted by Charles Harrison, her eighteen-year-old husband.

PLAYED WITH DEATH.

Both of these pathetic little girls who went through the sorrows of woman before ever they reached womanhood played with death as calmly as they might have played with their dolls. For if neither Marian Lambert committed suicide or was murdered, she made no protest or struggle against approaching death, as the mutilated body of the murdered boy was found abused.

And Elizabeth Harrison invited the man she intended to kill to go automobile riding with her without a tremor in her voice and after she had slain him, she returned home laughing and chattering to her mother as if she had been on a pleasure excursion and no real stain lay across her soul.

And the boy lover and the two husband who have seen love and lust and to murder and who are themselves carried down in the maelstrom of disaster look on the uncomprehending children with eyes as full of fear as from anxiety about their terrible plight by childish trifles, such as whether the papers have got hand-some pictures of them and are printing big stories about them.

And in both the Lambert case and the Harrison case the actors in these tragedies are held by two other little school girls, mere babes in years, who were the intimate friends and confidantes and advisers in these sex dramas.

Of course, ever since the world began, women have loved not wisely, but too well. Women have given unrequited love, and women have slain the men who had betrayed them of their honor. Also faithless men have kissed and ridden away. But these murders are something new under the sun, and they have been perpetrated by the actual participation of children.

These crimes are as old as history and as oft repeated, but they have been the crimes of men and women, not of children.

YOUTH MAKES HORROR.

What makes the peculiar horror of these cases is the element of youth in the youth of those involved. It is the thought of these boys and girls playing with passion and dabbling their hands in blood that makes everything so hideous. It makes it monstrous, unbelievable. It is this that makes it as grotesquely repulsive as would be a child carrying on the affairs of the "Second Mrs. Tanqueray" or "Hedda Gabler."

Yet this thing that we would shrink from naming to us as strange has happened in real life, and it has happened almost everywhere and at the continent apart, and under widely varying social conditions. That fact alone is terribly significant, for it shows that whatever influence is undermining the morals of our children, it is broadcast throughout the land.

What baleful influence is it that makes of modern conditions of society a forcing house for the emotions of the young, and brings the girl to precocious and unwholesome bloom? Is it the mad speed at which we are all geared up and which makes all life such a rush that we have no time in which even to think, much less to let the cramming process of our schools and where we have to guide down knowledge in a lump instead of ooaxing it into it slowly? Is it because we feed the imagination of our children constantly on thoughts of love and passion by means of novels and moving picture reels?

Perhaps each and all of these have their effect, but to me it is that real children are almost as extinct as the Dodo, and in their place we have little automatons who are blase and worldly wise in their very restless little girls of five or six who are just as much concerned about the fashions as their mothers; little girls of ten or twelve who are already ogling the men; little girls of fifteen and eighteen, like Elizabeth Harrison and Marian Lambert, who have stolen or been slain for crimes of passion.

And we have that heart-breaking army of little girls of the underpaid, underfed, undeveloped little creatures whose fate has taken hold on both, as the prophet said it, almost as soon as they were old enough to walk, and who have been driven relentlessly by necessity to know where the road they have chosen leads them.

BOYS WITH SINS OF MEN.

And we have boys like William Orpet and Charles Harrison, who have taken upon their weak and immature shoulders the burdens and sins of men, and who are crushed into nothingness by them. We have boys who are drunkards before their mothers' milk is dry upon their lips, boys who are in prison cells before they have had time to grow a beard, get rich they could not wait to earn money, but stole it, and boys by the thousand, fifteen-year-old, pale-faced, chested, anemic boys—with cigarettes stained fingers, who die because they were in too great haste to live.

We all know what happens to the colt that is raced at two years old. We all know how flavorless are vegetables and fruits that are forced. We all know how perishable is the exotic flower of the green house. We all know that nature works deliberately, that it takes time to give the slow growth that means strength and endurance to the race horse, that brings flavor to the fruit, and sweetness to the flower.

$100 PRIZE OFFER TO CLERGY

One of the features of "Better Babies Week" in Boston is the motion picture scenario contest announced by the AMERICAN. A prize of $100, donated by a Lynn man, will be paid to the author of a scenario which depicts most graphically the contrast between babies properly brought up and infants reared under improper conditions. The contest is limited to clergymen, but there is no restriction as to residence or denomination.

Louis Agassis Archer, the well-known philanthropist of Lynn, originated the idea and is to provide the prize fund. The scenarios will be examined by judges to be selected later. The winning manuscript will be produced in moving pictures and the author's name will be flashed on the screen.

The proceeds of the prize scenario will be given to the National Mothers and Babies Fund. The contest is aimed to aid the "Better Babies" movement initiated by the Federal Children's Bureau at Washington.

AIM IS "BETTER BABIES."

Mr. Archer's hope is that the clergy may tell their experiences in scenario form—experiences which bear directly upon the problem of making the babies better by bettering the conditions under which they are reared. A scenario contest will not only stimulate interest in this vitally important matter, but will have thrown upon the screen such a scenario will be the most powerful sermon possible. It will be a broadcast on the need of the bringing up of ALL babies under the very best conditions.

To enter the contest clergymen require experience in the scenario writing line. No more stress need be laid on the technique of scenario-writing, than the chief thing is to sketch your scenes as dramatically as possible, make them true to life and the action of scenario you write subtle with original ideas.

These are the rules of the contest.

RULES OF THE CONTEST.

1.—Only clergymen are eligible to enter in this contest.

2.—Only one scenario is permitted to each contestant. All employes of the AMERICAN and their families are barred from participating in the contest.

3.—The contest will consist of moving picture sketches, or scenarios as they are called. These must be written on one side of the paper only, and as they are to be typewritten, double spaced.

4.—The scenarios written for this contest must deal with the underlying facts of the "Better Babies" movement, they must picture the contrast of these facts by a contrast of babies properly reared with babies who have improper raising. For instance, the baby raised by intelligent parents in proper manner can be compared with the baby reared in the absence of those advantages and opportunities and the care it should have to fit it for its adult period. The scenarios must be left to the individual contestant, to arrange them from their own field experiences in their pastoral work.

5.—Contestants are limited as many scenarios as they desire.

6.—The scenarios must be original.

7.—Send your scenarios by prepaid mail only. It is absolutely necessary that the package be fully prepaid at postal letter rate, as mail of this class is given the postoffice as first class matter. The AMERICAN reserves the right to refuse answers on which charges for postage are due. Every fully prepaid package for the AMERICAN will not be responsible for scenarios unless sent by registered mail and addressed to Scenario Contest Editor, No. 8 Winthrop square, Boston, Mass.

8.—Number your scenarios in any numbers you choose, and also give it a title. Enclose with the scenario a sealed envelope on the outside of which write the number of your scenario and the number you have chosen, and on the inside of the sealed envelope get a slip of paper with your full name and address.

9.—Scenarios must be mailed so as to reach the office of the Boston AMERICAN by midnight of March 31, 1916.

9.—The prize-winning scenario will be the property of the National Mothers and Babies Fund, and it will be used for motion pictures, in which the author's name will appear as the author, and the aim of the scenario in saving pictures will be solely to aid the "Better Baby" movement, and all proceeds will go into the fund.

10.—No scenarios will be returned to the authors, but the moving picture rights of the authors (with the exception of the prize winner) will remain with them.

11.—The AMERICAN reserves the right to publish from time to time during the contest scenarios as may have been submitted.

12.—The AMERICAN reserves the right to make any change in, or addition to, these conditions that may be deemed necessary for fairly and properly conducting this contest, and the decision of the Scenario Contest Editor on any question which may arise will be final; and the entering of a contestant is a complete acceptance of all conditions and regulations now made or to be made.

13.—There will be one prize—an award of $100 (one hundred dollars), donated for the purpose by Louis Agassiz Archer, the Lynn philanthropist. This will be given to the author of the scenario deemed by the contest judges to be the very best scenario submitted in this contest.

Here is a model baby, the kind that the promoters of national baby week would like to develop in all families. This baby, seven months old, weighs eighteen pounds and has never been sick a day. Doctors call him a "super-perfect baby."

Baby Week opened in Boston today with splendid lectures, demonstrations of baby care and close attention from large audiences, all designed to give the Boston baby a better chance.

There were lectures and discussions at three large department stores and baby clinics at four stations of the Milk and Baby Hygiene Association.

Morning and afternoon features were given at William Filene's Sons store and the Jordan Marsh Company's store and morning lectures at the Houghton & Dutton store. Women, especially young mothers, came in throngs to these talks, which dealt with baby feeding, bathing, dressing exercising, handling and even baby clothes.

The station clinics held by the Milk and Baby Hygiene Association were in progress throughout the day at the following social centres: North End Union, 39 Parmenter street; Dennison House at No. 32 Tyler street in Roxbury, Neighborhood House at No. 558 Albany street in Roxbury, and Morgenster House at No. 15 Golden place.

MOTHERS ADVISED.

Mothers who came to these stations were advised as to care and feeding of their infants, preparation of milk for bottle babies and other pertinent subjects.

Appropriate to the time the Cambridge Nursing Association held its annual meeting at Phillips Brooks House in Cambridge.

The School for Salesmanship on the seventh floor of the Jordan Marsh Company's store rang out at 4 o'clock when Miss Greta Mabry, N. former superintendent of the Massachusetts Babies Hospital, began her illustrated stereopticon lecture on "The Baby and His Bath."

Before and after the lecture hundreds filed the store's baby exhibit.

Miss Mabry was introduced by Mrs. Robert Lincoln O'Brien, vice-president of the Cambridge City Federation of Women's Clubs, who said: "Baby Week aims to give all babies a fair chance, to see that they are properly reared and nourished and that their environment is proper."

BATHING INSTRUCTIONS

Miss Mabry, dressed as a nurse, said in part:

"One bath a day for a baby is sufficient under normal conditions. Personally I favor sponge bathing until they are five or six months old. The bath should be made as attractive as possible. Don't scold baby or frighten it from it. The fair average temperature ranges from 90 to 99 degrees. Some test temperature with fingers or elbows but I use a wooden thermometer to make sure.

"The clothing should be properly aired and dried and laid out in order to everything may be at hand. Baby should never be immersed too thoroughly or suddenly. Use good soap and not too much. Rinse every particle of soap from the baby's body. Don't use too much powder.

At 3 p. m. Health Commissioner Francis X. Mahoney of this city, and Dr. Josephine Marsh Company's store on "Infant Mortality."

At William Filene's Sons store Mr. Arthur H. Merritt lectured at 11 o'clock in the baby exhibit department on "Milk and Baby Week," and in part:

"Although we are given to understand that Boston is fighting for third place with St. Louis on the low infant death rate, we are at the same time told by the Boston Health Department that the local statistics are incomplete. How can we attack a problem intelligently unless facts are first known?"

Mrs. Merritt was followed by Dr. Arthur Emmons, 2d, who spoke on "How to Reach the World in Good Health." At the title suggested, he was a discussion on pre-natal preparation. Dr. Emmons said:

LOWERS DEATH RATE.

"A wise baby will choose a foreign-born mother, because in Boston the death rate among such is the lowest. These women nurse their children, and that naturally makes for healthy and strength. Fifty per cent. of deaths in the first month of babyhood are preventable by proper pre-natal care."

At 2:30 p. m. Merritt spoke again at the Filene store and Dr. Bradley M. Smith talked on "The Care of the Baby."

At the Houghton & Dutton store Miss Margaret B. Babcock gave an illustrated lecture at 11 a. m. on "Pure Milk," she said that "Infants of the infants in the land depend for their very existence upon the milk supply, also that one-sixth of the food supply of the people of the country consists of milk and milk products.

Speaking on infant mortality, Miss Babcock announced two boston babies had been saved from death by the use of pure milk. "We were able to find one baby suffering from cholera infantum, and by the use of pure milk we were able to save it from this ailment.

"Another baby was rescued with pure milk," said Ward Twenty-three, "after it had been given up by the doctors. I believe that of the less populated ward of the city, Ward Twenty-three has done more to save babies than any other section of Boston."

At 3:30 o'clock at the Houghton & Dutton store Dr. Agnes C. Vietor spoke on "The Training of Baby Week." She was followed by Miss Mary Sherman, district superintendent of the public nurses, at Rutland, on the subject, "Baby Week and Its Meaning."

Miss Vietor's address to the mothers was on "Child Welfare" by Miss Sherman on "Baby Week and Its Meaning."

that the members will think pretty much about his case in the House."

"Will the House take action on Swig's status?" the Speaker was asked.

"Not until we hear from the court," was the answer.

WOODILL WAS THERE.

The AMERICAN, in its early editions today, reported that among the legislators present at Concord Lodge, the Swig Summer home, were the following five:

Representatives Edward J. Sandberg, Charles B. Frothingham, Charles H. Brown, Peter Holt and Harry E. Woodill.

Representative Woodill confirmed this in good, saying:

"Sure I was there. The AMERICAN has the right list today of those there. There were four or five members of Mr. Swig's family and five or six fellows who left in the morning before we got to the party. There were not members of the Legislature. They were friends of Swig and strangers to me. It was a perfectly good party —something to drink, but that was all."

Dr. Charles D. Frothingham, Representative from the Thirteenth Essex District, Lynn, and member of the committee on cities was asked if he was present at the Swig party. He said:

WHIST AND HEARTS

"Before I answer that question I want to make notice on the AMERICAN that I am going to a week-end party next Friday night. It's funny several members of the Legislature cannot enjoy the hospitality of a brother member over the week-end without notoriety.

"I was present with several other members of the House at Mr. Swig's party. We went to his cottage merely to pass the time of day. I see no absolutely nothing in that.

"We did play cards—two hands at whist and a little game of hearts—but there was no gambling. I never play cards for money. I wouldn't even play for a cigar. There was no money displayed in the card games.

Dr. Frothingham spoke with reluctance in making his explanation. He did not conclude to the information as to when the "week-end party next Friday night" would be held.

Rev. Roland D. Sawyer, Representative from Ware, became indignant when asked if he were present at the Swig party.

Of course I wasn't there. Representative Sawyer said. Instead of being at a champagne party I was at home writing my sermon for Sunday."

"FAKE" LIST OF GUESTS.

The Swig party has "brought to a head" the question of Mr. Swig's right to a seat in the Massachusetts House.

It was not a prohibition meeting. Reporters who dropped around to inquire the why of the gathering of Bay State legislators in Rhode Island found everything in the house except a license.

A humorist among the guests gave to reporters a "fake list" of those present, and from this bit of humor came unexpected publicity. The "fake list" was genuine.

MYSTERY IN GUESTS.

Speaker Cox, who, as a matter of fact, attended a Dartmouth dinner on Saturday night at Hotel Bellevue, Boston.

Representative John H. Sherburne of Brookline who answered the telephone call in person when the AMERICAN sought a verification of the Swig list.

Representative William W. Sennard of Somerville, who spent the evening at his Somerville club.

Representative Thomas J. Gillis of East Boston, who called the AMERICAN in person from Gridley's restaurant at 12:50 o'clock Sunday morning to say that the list was a fake, so far as he was concerned, and to venture the opinion that probably Mr. Swig wasn't present, either. (Swig WAS.)

Representative J. Weston Allen of Newton.

Representative Joseph E. Warner of Taunton.

Representative Roland D. Sawyer of Ware.

Senator James E. Tetler of Lawrence.

Representative Edward J. Sandberg of Quincy. (Sandberg was there with bells on.)

DENIALS COME FAST.

Swig, who was once in the House of Representatives from Taunton, and who was censured at that time for talking too much during the bucket-shop scandal, now occupies a Boston seat his claim to which appears to be at the least tenuous. He has been found guilty by the lower courts of having spent more money to obtain his election than the Corrupt Practices act allows, but the court has sent along to the Supreme Judicial Court the question of the constitutionality of this C. P. act.

Inasmuch as, sooner or later, the House may be called upon to vote on Swig, and his claim to a seat, some of the more careful and experienced members of the Legislature were to-day anxious to prove beyond a doubt that they were not at the stag Swig party in Concord Lodge. The questions of the day was:

"Were you at the Swig party?"

And the answer usually was a thundering:

"You bet your life I wasn't!"

Representative E. Sandberg of Quincy, who WAS at the Swig doings, told the reporters yesterday, on a train bound north from Middletown, that the Saturday night list was given out in error.

Speaker Cox declines to laugh. "This is a very serious matter," the Speaker said today to the AMERICAN. "I was not at Swig's party. I was spending over a thousand dollars at the Hotel Bellevue Saturday night. I'm looking for my bill now."

Senator Representative Sherburne of Brookline nor Representative Kendall of Somerville, who, it appears, are sons Representative Allen of Newton would not go if they were invited. Without exception all of those who have already made it plain that Representative Wilson of Boston was not invited to and not invited.

COOL DRINKABLES IN SNOW.

When the AMERICAN discovered on Saturday night that the guest list at Concord Lodge was false, at least in large part, erroneous, AMESBURY reporters at Newport sailed forth to cover the house yesterday morning and get a correct list of the week-end party.

Six of the Swig's guests had already departed on the early morning train, but the five who were still at Concord Lodge were said to be:

Representative Edward J. Sandberg of Quincy.

Representative Charles B. Frothingham of Lynn.

Representative Peter Holt of North Andover.

Representative Harry E. Woodill of Melrose.

The six who left earlier, the station agent said, looked disgruntled enough to be members of any Legislature.

Concord Lodge is a two story frame dwelling on West River, near Narragansett Bay. Hardly the entrance the reporters discovered a snow drift of champagne. Connoisseurs will tell you that the snow drift method of cooling the juice of the grape has got every mellow beaten a mile.

Within the Lodge there were certain indications that a big night had passed into history.

"What kind of a party have you had since Friday night?" Representative Swig was asked.

"A private party," said Simon. "This was a private party and it was our business. There is no need for anybody butting in particularly newspaper men."

"But wasn't the party attended by men in public life?"

"It was," Mr. Swig admitted, "and we were discussing momentous public issues. We were formulating legislation that would be beneficial to the people. We discussed the Constitutional Convention. Have a drink."

OBREGON SUMMONED TO JOIN CARRANZA

El Paso, Tex., March 6.—Owing to military developments in Mexico, including the revolt headed by Felix Diaz, General Alvaro Obregon has been summoned to join Provisional President Carranza. He left here early today, his departure interrupting a honeymoon which the famous soldier had been passing in El Paso with his bride. General Obregon said that Diaz would be unable to gain any success in a general revolt.

NUNS, DRIVEN FROM MEXICO, REACH N. Y.

By International News Service.

New York, March 6.—Thirty nuns arrived here today on the steamer Antonio Lopez from Vera Cruz, Mexico. They had been driven out of their convent at Morelos, Mexico, where for the past twelve years they had educated children of means.

The convent, valued at $250,000, was confiscated by the Carranza government, which ordered the nuns out of the country. The order forbade them to return to Mexico. The sisters are on their way to Spain.

2 AVIATORS FALL IN CENTRAL PARK

New York, March 6.—While flying from Garden City, L. I., to Governor's Island, Alexander F. Thaw and John A. Kane were injured early today when their biplane fell into Central Park. The gasoline had become exhausted and the aeroplane was volplaning to earth when it was caught by a cross-current of wind. Neither man was badly hurt.

FATALLY BURNED AT PORTSMOUTH

Portsmouth, N. H., March 6.—Edward F. Small, a fireman employed at the Rockingham Light and Power Plant, is dying at the Portsmouth Hospital from burns received by standing too near his boilers while wearing oil-soaked clothing. In flames the man rushed out of the plant and headed for the water's edge, intending to jump overboard. The crew of a barge stopped him and extinguished the flames by wrapping him in blankets.

VIRTUAL TAX ON MUNITIONS MAKERS

Washington, March 6.—Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo expects that what amounts to a tax on munition makers will be collected this year through the corporation tax. This impost, which applies to munition makers as well as to other manufacturers, is expected by the secretary to bring greatly increased returns. The tax is on corporation profits.

El Paso, Tex., March 6.—Three Mexicans found to be suffering from typhus were isolated today while the authorities were conducting a rigid search for other cases. The patients now under observation recently came from Mexico.

Lost a Handbag? Women Eager to See Collection

Scores of women from all parts of greater Boston, happy or hopeful, went to the City Hall police station today to identify property alleged to have been stolen by Mrs. Myrtle Hayhorn, twenty-three, of Toronto, Can.

Mrs. Hayhorn, who, the police say, claims to be a kleptomaniac, with a respectable family in Cambridge, was arrested in a downtown store. She was arraigned today in six counts of larceny from the person, with four counts pending.

Among the articles said to have been found on the woman were six handbags, one containing $18, said to be the property of Mrs. J. Cahill, No. 22 Shannon street, Brighton; a second, owner unknown, containing $21 in United States money and $2 in Canadian money; a third, owner unknown, consigned to C. — church, containing $15, believed to be the property of Mrs. M. S. Hood, No. 12 Glendale street, Dorchester; a fifth, with $6, owned by Edith Curren, No. 72 Chestnut street, Charlestown, and a bag with $3 owned by Rose Blair, No. 123 Pearl street, Boston.

SAILOR IS HELD ON DEATH CHARGE

Richmond, Va., May, a sailor connected with the U. S. S. Bischell, was in Municipal Court today charged with manslaughter. It is alleged that May caused the death of A. E. Nelson, of Atherton street, Roxbury. May pleaded not guilty and was held in $1,000 for a hearing Saturday.

HOUSE RETURNS; REPORTS TO WILSON

By International News Service.

Washington, March 6.—Whether the United States can tender its good offices in an endeavor to end the European war was squarely before President Wilson today. His special ambassador, Colonel E. M. House, who reached New York yesterday on the steamer Rotterdam, reported to the President today.

Four hours the President and the man who admittedly is closer to him than any other individual threshed out the general situation. The regular calendar of Presidential engagements was halted. Outside, in the corridors men who had fixed appointments to meet the President waited, while the entire situation confronting the European belligerents was presented at first hand by "the man who never talks."

Colonel House arrived in Washington early today. When asked to outline his plans he simply said that his "lips were sealed" and referred all inquiries to the President. He declared that the result of his trip abroad was "perfectly satisfactory" to himself.

Probably not in the recent history of the United States has such elaborate precautions been taken to prevent any information regarding the report of Colonel House becoming public property as was taken today. The conference was limited entirely to the President and his special ambassador. Secretary Lansing was not on hand.

At both the White House and at the State Department there was an entire absence today of optimism. It was intimated that the state of public feeling in France and England was entirely opposed to any consideration of peace suggestions at present. Should the German drive against Verdun succeed, officials said the allies emphatically would refuse to consider any plan proposed for ending the war.

Should Germany be defeated in the present movement than the allies will demand opportunity to complete their planned counter offensive, in the opinion of State Department officials.

CLUB WOMEN APPRECIATE THE AMERICAN

"WE women wish to extend our heartfelt gratitude to the Boston Sunday AMERICAN for the splendid and effective showing it gave to the 'Baby Week' movement. The page with the striking Nell Brinkley drawing of a baby and the space devoted to our cause helped greatly. The editors have been extremely kind."—Statement made today by Mrs. Arthur Henry Merritt, president of the Boston City Federation, embracing sixty-odd women's clubs and a membership of 25,000.

RUSSIAN ARMY MOVES TO CUT OFF TURKS

London, March 6.—The Daily News today prints the following dispatch from Arthur Ransome, its correspondent at Petrograd:

"The British operations are considered the logical development of the capture of Erzerum, bringing up the left flank after the central advance. A similar operation is proceeding on the opposite flank, where the Russians are advancing north from Erzerum and endeavoring to cut off the Turkish forces retiring along the Black Sea in the Vitze district.

"The Turks are hemmed in from the south by mountains and are compelled to follow the road where it can be bombarded from the sea. Unless they succeed in reaching Rizeh before the Russians, the Turkish force will be taken in the rear. News to this effect is expected daily."

NEWARK FIRM SEEKS BOSTON WHARFAGE

Boston may benefit by freight congestion in other ports, according to a communication received by Mayor Curley today from a Newark, N. J., concern, which desires the immediate use of 10,000 square feet of wharf space. The Mayor will see if there is any idle wharfage available in Boston.

KEEP OFF ARMED SHIPS, SAYS BRYAN

By International News Service.

New York, March 6.—The duty of Americans to keep off armed merchantmen and the power and duty of the government to keep them off, were urged here by William J. Bryan, former Secretary of State. Fifteen hundred people who filled the music hall of the Academy of Music in Brooklyn at a meeting of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences received his statement with applause.

Mr. Bryan spoke on preparedness. He declared there were three reasons why it is "the supreme duty of this nation to remain neutral until this war is over." The first and second were the tremendous cost in money and the enormous loss of American lives that war would entail. The third was the fact that by becoming a party to the war the United States would lose the opportunity of being the peacemaker.

PLAN TO SPREAD MOVE FOR IRISH FREEDOM

By International News Service.

New York, March 6—As the 2,000 Irish-American delegates to the Irish race convention today were on their way home the executive committee of the Friends of Irish Freedom laid plans to form local branches of the new organization in every city and town in the United States.

At a meeting presided over by Victor Herbert, president, the committee arranged to send to every member of Congress and every newspaper the "Declaration of American rights and Irish independence," as they styled the convention's platform, which declared that Ireland must be restored to her place at a nation; that the United States should aid in this, that America should keep out of the war, and that the power of England must be broken, on sea and on land."

"We intend to see that our doctrine is spread throughout the length and breadth of the country," Herbert said. "This is not a pro-German movement, nor an attempt to interfere in American politics. Three thousand Irishmen and women who know that the Irish at home are not pro-English met here to start a move to restore Irish independence. We really believe that Ireland will again become a nation, as a result of the war."

The permanent organization resulting from the two-day convention unites all the Irish societies in the United States, except the United Irish League.

CARDINAL ATTENDS FUNERAL OF PRIEST

The funeral of Rev. Jeremiah J. Lyons, pastor of St. Raphael's Church in West Medford, who was killed in an automobile accident in Winchester last week, took place today at the church in West Medford.

A requiem low mass, a requiem high mass, and a solemn high mass of requiem were celebrated. Cardinal O'Connell attending the latter, which occurred at 10 o'clock.

Twenty-five hundred to three thousand people gathered at the church before the ceremonies, though only about 800 could get inside.

Rev. Nathaniel J. Merritt was celebrant, assisted by Rev. John A. Degnan, Rev. Francis Walsh, Rev. Frank Rogers and Rev. John Corbett.

Many members of the clergy and prominent Catholics were present. Burial was in St. Patrick's Cemetery, Stoneham.

HUSBAND AND 2 WIVES ASK DIVORCE

Three petitions for divorce were filed in the Norfolk Superior Court today.

Horace J. Ryder, a Dedham manufacturer, asked for a divorce from Elizabeth A. Ryder, charging cruel and abusive treatment. Mrs. Sarah W. Meeks of Mt. Kisco, N. Y., charging desertion and non-support. Mrs. Emma F. Nichols of Quincy petitioned for a divorce from Walter H. Nicholls, alleging cruel and abusive treatment and unfaithfulness.

FACES DEATH IN CHAIR LIKE STOIC

Anton Retkovitz, who is at the State Prison, Charlestown, under a sentence to die in the electric chair during the week of March 12, for the killing of Homka Peremebida at Fall River, refuses to have an appeal go to the Governor requesting a stay of sentence or to have the death sentence commuted to life imprisonment.

Retkovitz, who is in Cell No. 1 of "Murderers' Row," calmly awaits his end. He has twice been convicted of the crime. At Taunton February 8, when the death sentence was pronounced by Judge Dubuque, Retkovitz refused to have his attorney, Frank M. Silvia, of Fall River, take further steps to save him from the chair. When Silvia endeavored to explain to the prisoner that there was still a chance to escape the chair, Retkovitz only replied, "An innocent man is not afraid to meet his God. I am not afraid to die."

It was at first thought that Retkovitz did not realize he was sentenced to be electrocuted but during his stay at the House of Correction in New Bedford he made it evident by his questions that he knew what the office of the court is. He asked his keepers many questions concerning the electric chair.

The doomed man remains stoical while those who have been brought in contact with him have been moved to tears. John I. Bryant, County Commissioner of Bristol County, who has talked with thousands of prisoners, says Retkovitz amazed him by his coolness. When he tried to sympathize with the doomed man, the latter smiled.

NEW EVIDENCE FOUND IN ROPER MURDER

Lowell, March 6—New evidence which he is confident will free Albert J. Roper, charged with the murder of his father, Albert W. Roper, the wealthy Newsbury florist, was claimed to have been discovered today by William H. Wilson, attorney for the accused son.

Young Roper was permitted but one visitor, Sunday, his attorney, who conferred with him about the new discoveries which are expected to play an important part in the case. Meanwhile the police are hunting for new evidence in a strengthen their claim that Roper was seen in the vicinity of the greenhouse the night his father was killed with a piece of pipe.

Only members of the family were present at the simple funeral services for Albert W. Roper. Albert J. Roper had expressed a desire to Sheriff Charles A. Eveleth to attend the funeral. This was refused and the prisoner later remarked that he "guessed it was all right to stay where he was."

The Rev. Sarah Dixon, pastor of the Newsbury Congregational Church officiated. Burial was in the little cemetery in Newsbury Centre.

Young Roper's wife has given up her position as a nurse in the Newsbury infirmary to stand by her husband. Whatever little difference there may have been between them has been forgotten. She is at the Roper home.

'Happy' Plans Surprises for Cabaret-Ball

Four more days (March 10) to the red-letter event in the history of Boston entertainments, the Happy Twenty ball and cabaret, undoubtedly the stellar event of the season.

With a glittering string of stars that will make the Lambs' Gambol resemble a conference of undertakers, the affair will token in importance far above everything of the kind which has ever been seen either in this city or in New York.

"Happy," the inofatigable "King of the Newsies," and Bill Lang, who is in charge of the program, are continually securing new features. Nothing is being overlooked in order to make the affair the most successful ever held, and it is feared that it will be necessary to turn a large number of persons away, so great is the demand for tickets.

Many are the surmises that are being made as to the identity of "The Fashion Plate," a feature entertainer who is being kept under cover. Neither "Happy" nor Billy Lang will give any information concerning this mysterious performer. They just smile tantalizingly when questioned.

They will only admit that the Fashion Plate is a "wonder."

There will be a cabaret show from 10 p. m. until 4 a. m., while there will be dancing from 9 p. m. to 2 a. m. "Alexander the Great" will furnish the music for the dances, while Miss Margaret Scollins and Harry Mulloy will show how the up-to-date dances should be danced.

The rest of the stars for the evening are Blanche Scribner, Esther Ray, Sophie Bennett, Della Tuttle, Helen Robbins, Bill Gleason, Jack Hewit, Victor Viverios and Jennie Quinn.

No tickets will be sent through the mail. They can be procured from news boys at the following stands: Corner Dover and Washington streets, Boylston and Washington streets, Park street subway entrance, Adams square, Scollay square, North and South stations or from "Happy's" office in the Boston AMERICAN and the downtown office at No. 264 Washington street.

Krazy Kat and Ignatz Mouse are no longer engaged. Alas, Krazy, who formerly mooned tenderly "He made me love him, I didna want dem," now wails "Muh heart it's turned to ice."

For the details of this tragedy of love we refer you to Krazy and Ignatz themselves in the Hearst-Vitagraph News Pictorial No. 16, released today. There, George Herriman, creator of Krazy and Ignatz, will have them enact for you the sad story of their broken romance, undoubtedly one of the funniest animated cartoons ever produced upon the screen.

First pictures of the activities of the French at Salonika are contained in the Hearst-Vitagraph today. Some idea of the immensity of the Allies' undertaking in Greece may be obtained from these pictures. Hundreds of warships, transports and other craft dot the harbor. The landing places and storehouses are flooded with supplies, thousands of soldiers and Greek subjects are at work moving munitions and aiding in the erection of defenses.

Other subjects covered by the Hearst-Vitagraph No. 18 include:

San Francisco—Thousands take part in a "one year after" celebration at the Panama-Pacific Exposition in which a baby parade is held and one of the buildings is destroyed by dynamite.

Staten Island, N. Y.—Hundreds of pigs are raised on the model farm of the Farm Colony which supplies all the pork used in charitable institutions maintained by the City of New York.

Miami, Fla.—Motor boat contest in annual meet over the Biscayne Bay course.

PIMPLES ON FACE IN BLOTCHES

Also on Chest. Large, Red and Hard. Face All Disfigured. Would Itch and Burn.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"My face and chest started to break out with pimples. Then my face started to get red and I used to scratch until the blood came. The pimples were large, red and hard, and the most of the time in blotches from my face to my chest. My face was all disfigured and would itch and burn so that I would stay awake hours at night.

"This kept on for seven and a half months so a friend advised me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I sent for a free sample and it started to heal me so I bought three cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Ointment, and they healed me." TWO OF THE MANY STRIKING OBJECT LESSONS showing the present shameful condition of Boston's streets. On the left is shown a section of Endicott street, between Stillman and Thatcher streets, with its accumulated refuse, and on the right Chickering place, which runs from Washington street to Harrison avenue extension, showing even the sidewalks obstructed with refuse in barrels and ash cans.

Declaring the streets of Boston are left in a filthy condition on Sunday and are an eyesore to visitors, members of civic organizations are planning a mass meeting to hear complaints and suggestions from public-spirited citizens who are anxious to abate such a nuisance.

Churchgoers complain bitterly. Not only are the unclean streets a reproach and against the text that "cleanliness is next to godliness," but they are a physical inconvenience to the Sabbath throngs of pedestrians.

Enlisted in the "clean street movement" are a number of Boston business men, all of whom declare it to be a "downright shame" that such a condition of affairs should be permitted to exist when so many cops are on the street department payrolls. They point out that the men are not pressed into service to do what they are paid for—keep the thoroughfares free from filth.

In defense of the complaints made against them city employes contend they are compelled to take a vacation in the Winter under authority of an act passed by the Legislature and known as the "City Employes' Two Weeks Vacation Measure." This law was intended to give city laborers a rest during the Summer time.

BLAMES CURLEY.

"Don't blame the city employes," said a city official today. "The responsibility rests with Mayor Curley and the head of the street cleaning department. Since that two weeks' vacation bill went into effect the working force allotted to the cleaning of streets has been cut about one-half. The other half are off on a forced vacation.

"The bosses merely keep the men busy cleaning the main arteries of travel, such as Summer, Washington, Tremont and Boylston streets. The city employes intended when they accepted the issuance of the two weeks' vacation bill that it would mean a rest for them during the hot months instead of the Winter season.

"The powers-that-be know there are more visitors in Boston in the summer months than the cold period. I'm glad the AMERICAN is showing up such conditions. That, in my opinion, is why the streets are dirtier in Winter than Summer. I believe many sentiments are concerned in by other city employes, many of whom are afraid to express themselves for fear of incurring the displeasure of the promoters of the economical administration."

STREETS LITTERED.

Photographs have been taken in various parts of the city showing a condition of affairs that is shocking to a cultured city like Boston. These photographs show apparent disregard which the administration has for the "cleaning idea," prevalent in other parts of the country.

Insect-breeding debris littered some of the side streets in the downtown section. In the North, West and South End sections straw, dirt and paper littered the streets. Endicott street, between Stillman and Thatcher streets, is an abominable condition. Such filth wouldn't be tolerated a minute in the vicinity of Copley square.

The puddle at the Back Bay would be up to areas and the streets would be cleaned in a short time. In the North End the people only face the echo of dirty ways when they ask for relief. Unsightly, in front of city officials' residences, is as clean as marble baths.

SHOWS NEGLIGENCE.

Never in the history of the city was snow and filth allowed to remain in the side streets for so long a time. Under the administration of ex-Mayor Fitzgerald an employes' force kept busy night and day cleaning the streets. Visitors to those days remarked how well kept the streets were.

Even under the regime of Mayor Hibbard, when the employes were discharged right and left, enough men were available to keep the streets in order.

A walk through thoroughfare and disclosed the fact that the fault of snow has covered much of the debris.

A look at Chickering place, which runs from Washington street to Harrison avenue extension, shows more negligence. Barrels filled with refuse are on the sidewalks. Tin cans, top of other side streets in that vicinity, old shoes and hats, whiskey bottles and discarded clothing are in evidence.

WILL ASK EXPLANATION.

Even Lafayette mall in the Common has its quota of paper employes, known as the "Hokey Pokey" brigade, used to be in the employ of the city, several years ago, but such material of the street. The absence of the "Hokey Pokey" men is very noticeable during this administration.

Business men are anxious to know where they are. Mayor Curley and his street department heads will be asked to explain the reason for getting rid of these men. They generally worked hard to keep old paper from littering the streets.

North street, in the vicinity of the market section, is also abundant in quota of old rope and paper and dirty straw. Many of the side streets off North street are in a deplorable condition and look as if they never saw a street sweeper.

In Roxbury the streets are in the same condition. This is also true of the side streets in South Boston. Residents of those sections want to know where the "invisible sweepers are."

DO THIS FIRST—YOU!

You know, and every physician knows, that after any sickness whether it be throat trouble, organic disturbances, contagious diseases, or even a severe cold, relapse is dangerous, because sickness has weakened the system and left it subject to lingering germs.

Drugs never build up a worn-out body—only food can do that, and the first thing to take after any sickness is the blood-enriching oil-food in Scott's Emulsion, which feeds the tissues, benefits the blood and strengthens both lungs and throat.

Physicians prescribe Scott's after sickness. Nurses advocate it. Scott's is pure medicinal food, without alcohol or injurious drugs.

Greatest Auto Show Magnet for Thousands in Mechanics Building

By J. C. KERRISON.

No Boston motor show was ever opened under more auspicious circumstances than was the one now in progress in Mechanics Building. The attendance on Saturday night was unprecedented, which is saying a great deal, and judging from the crowds that were in attendance during the early hours of this morning, the first day of this week is surely going to be another record breaker.

Hardly were the doors open today before there was a steady stream of visitors, all really interested in the development and the possible purchase of motor vehicles. The dealers and salesmen took for a particularly prosperous week. All had their brooks sharpened preparatory to writing out a bunch of orders.

Yesterday brought with it a welcome relief to those actively engaged in the exhibit, giving to them a little opportunity to recover from the exertions of the previous week, and permitting the members of the trade to visit the exhibit and make a critical inspection of the various models, unhampered by a throng of spectators.

PRICE INCREASE POSSIBLE.

These chassis are most interesting, indeed, all are worthy of critical examination by anyone interested in mechanics. They set forth the various constructive details of the different makes and models and in themselves are a strong object lesson.

The general talk among the trade yesterday seemed to be a possible increase of price all along the line. The men from the factories, although declining to make any definite statement, gave one the idea that it is the question of a very short time before a very general increase in price will be experienced. When one stops to think it over, it would seem that there is more reason to increase than to decrease.

Raw materials of all kinds that go to make an automobile are costing a great deal more than they have at any previous time in the history of the industry, and yet the average price of the motor car is much less.

The prices in vogue at the present time were determined upon practically before the conditions of the raw material market reached such an acute stage as now.

URGE IMMEDIATE PURCHASES.

It is much more difficult to obtain material, and material is costing much more, and naturally somebody must pay the freight, or at least the consumer must share a portion of the burden with the producer, and it would not be at all surprising if a general rise in price is experienced within the next month or two.

In view of this fact," said one dealer, "it would be pretty wise for the prospective purchaser of cars to place his order at once. There will be an under-production this year, and this conclusion is arrived at by experiences at all the shows that have been held this season."

The early attendants at the show this morning seemed to bear out these facts, and before the noon hour had been reached many orders had been placed.

KELLY-SPRINGFIELD CO. SHOW MODELS

P. H. Hutchinson, sales manager of the Kelly-Springfield Motor Truck Company, arrived today to spend a few days at the automobile show. The Kelly-Springfield Motor Truck Company is one of the prominent exhibitors at the show and is making a feature of its new one and one-half and two and one-half-ton worm-driven chassis. The Boston show has been selected as the place for the first public display of the Kelly worm-driven models.

"We are particularly interested in the worm-driven chassis, which we have created at the Boston show," said Mr. Hutchinson. "Most motor truck manufacturers now consider the Boston show the best place in the country to display motor trucks. Since the automobile of the national truck shows at New York and Chicago, Boston must be given the first place as a truck exhibition center.

APPERSON CHUMMY ROADSTER UNIQUE

One of the newest ideas in body design exhibited at the motor show is the Apperson Chummy Roadster for four. The most unique thing about this type of car is that it can readily be made into a two-passenger or four-passenger car at the will of the driver. It is really two styles of automobile in one and is intended to meet the demands of people who are interested in either a roadster or a touring car.

In this Chummy roadster model there is an aisle between the two front seats, and the seating arrangement is so worked out as to allow all passengers to sit in a sort of a "chummy" fashion; hence the name which the car has been given.

The top with which the car is equipped is made to fold down close around the outside of rear seat backs, and the dust cover when in position is closed over the two rear seats, making them invisible. By this arrangement the Chummy roadster has the appearance of a two-passenger car with an ordinary top cover on. To use the rear seat it is only necessary to roll this cover back in the top. By reason of this precaution the rear seats may be kept free from dust and dirt when not in use.

CALLS NEW ENGLAND GREAT AUTO MART

That New England is one of the most important automobile markets in the country, especially for a car of popular price, is the declaration of J. J. Plath, sales manager of the Maxwell Company, who is attending the Boston show. Mr. Plath's point of view is of interest both on account of his present position as sales manager of the Maxwell company, and also because of his prior connection as sales supervisor of the Atlantic coast territory in which New England is situated.

SAYS FORD AUTO IS UNIVERSALLY USED

Nothing unusual or of special effort is made to emphasize the exhibit of the Ford car. None is needed. The Ford is known throughout the world as the "universal car," and as Manager Lucas E. Fay said this morning: "We have occupied this space for these many years and our customers and friends have learned to look for us here, so that we do not have to do anything out of the ordinary.

"The Ford needs no description. Everyone knows what it is, how it is designed, constructed, sold and what it can and does accomplish, so that we really do not have to say anything in its favor; it speaks for itself.

"On every street in city, town or village; on every highway and byway throughout the entire land you cannot travel a day without meeting with one or more Ford cars—you see them wherever you go, and wherever you see them they are going—on the farm, in the city, and now the economy of operation has found them a place in commercial life. The largest corporations and thousands of firms throughout the country are equipping their traveling forces, collectors, inspectors, salesmen, investigators, etc., with Ford cars, just because the Ford car has proven a business economy."

BIG INCREASE IN AUTOCAR SALES

The number of Autocars has increased twofold in this territory during the past season, says Sales Manager Page of the Autocar Service Company.

"We have in actual use today in this territory over 1,000 motor vehicles," he declared. "This we consider as the greatest recommendation that can possibly be given a motor vehicle of any description. The Autocar is in daily use, doing the work of hundreds of the best and largest commercial houses in this section, and the exhibit at Mechanics Building speaks volumes in favor of this well known vehicle. Here are seen motor trucks which upon the close of the show will immediately be delivered to their owners, who have been kind enough to permit the Autocar Company to hold them long enough so that Boston and New England people may have an opportunity to see them."

Jeffrey Company Liberal.

"Automobile owners today are receiving more value for their money than at any time since the inception of the industry," says C. P. Rockwell, New England representative of the Thomas B. Jeffery Company. "This is true of all cars and all classes. In order to survive, even for six months, no automobile company can place on the market a product which is not durable and one which will not give satisfaction."

Motor Show Notes

The show brought to Boston the representative men of the industry, men whose names are more or less famous in the industrial world, and it is no uncommon sight to see these men grouped together discussing the affairs of moment.

* * *

Sales Manager Jerrard of the Apperson Company came to Boston to witness the opening of the exhibit and yesterday left for the factory to hasten production and shipments to this city. In speaking to Frank L. Browne, his local representative, Mr. Jerrard stated that he considered the Boston show the best he has seen this year, both in the way of decorations, popular interest and actual business. "Never," said he, "have I seen so many actual sales on the opening night of a show as were made last night."

* * *

Among the other visitors in our midst are Vice-President and General Manager H. W. Hayden and General Sales Manager A. R. Cosgrove of the Pullman Car Company, who are making their headquarters at the Copley-Plaza.

* * *

H. B. Wheelock of the Velie arrived in town yesterday afternoon from the upper end of the exhibit.

* * *

J. I. Harris of the White Company is due to arrive here this morning, when he will immediately go into session with Newton, his right hand man, who has been doing the honors for the past few days.

* * *

One of the prettiest and really most interesting exhibits of the entire show is that of the Mitchell cars on display. The entire range of the line is handsomely framed Mitchell car with a typical New England background. The car is actually framed and stands out with as much vividness and beauty as does an oil painting of one of the masters. Paul Revere Hall is a part and parcel of the main exhibit, reached from the main hall as well as by a separate stairway, and the exhibit here is really worth while. Manager Lucas of the Pope Hartford Company has certainly done himself credit with his exhibit.

WHITE COMPANY'S TRUCKS FEATURE OF THE AUTO SHOW

Surpassing all previous shows in both number and variety of exhibits, the motor truck display in the basement of the Mechanics Building this year offers a remarkable opportunity to the business man to study the advances that are being made in the application of commercial vehicles to present-day delivery problems.

One motor truck company which has always participated with a great variety of trucks is the White Company. This year, as usual, the White leads in numerical display as well as in diversity of types. This, however, is not unexpected of a company whose product outnumbers any other two to one and which received the only grand prize for motor trucks at the San Francisco exposition.

The leadership maintained by this company is often the subject of comment in circles where trucks are a topic of conversation. A recently published list of purchasers showing thirty-seven concerns operating over 1,700 Whites has not escaped discussion nor failed to emphasize the magnitude now attained by the truck industry. J. S. Hathaway, New England manager for the White Company, ascribed the present concentrated buying activity to the fact that hundreds of merchants who have experimented with trucks of different makes have standardized their equipment.

Not a Bite of Breakfast Until You Drink Water

Says a glass of hot water and phosphate prevents illness and keeps us fit.

Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken day after day leaves in the alimentary canal a certain amount of indigestible material, which, if not completely eliminated from the system each day, becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels. From this mass of leftover waste, toxins and ptomaine-like poisons are formed and sucked into the blood.

Men and women who can't get feeling right must begin to take inside baths. Before eating breakfast each morning drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash out of the thirty feet of bowels the previous day's accumulation of poisons and toxins and to keep the entire alimentary canal clean, pure and fresh.

Those who are subject to sick headaches, colds, biliousness, constipation, others who wake up with bad taste, foul breath, backache, rheumatic stiffness, or have a sour, gassy stomach after meals, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store and begin practicing internal sanitation. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on the subject.

Remember, inside bathing is more important than outside bathing, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing poor health, while the bowel pores do. Just as soap and hot water cleanses, sweetens and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. —Advertisement.

HEAVY SCOLLAY SQUARE LOSS BY FLOOD

A small army of firemen, city employes, insurance officials and telephone conduit workers were hard at work today repairing the damage caused by the breaking of a water main on Court street near Scollay square, which resulted in a miniature geyser which flooded the nearby streets and the cellars of nearly every building in the vicinity.

At 9 o'clock the water was practically all gone from the cellars and streets and the water department started a number of hoselines to thaw the ground. Then began a search for leaks. Elevated plows were put into service to scrape away ice on State street.

Engine 4, from the Bulfinch street house was for hours stationed in Pemberton square "syphoning" the water out of the basement of the United States Trust Company in the Scollay Building. A squad of men from the water department manned a hand pump to remove the water from the basement of other buildings, while the men from the telephone company were in manholes repairing a mass of short-circuited wires.

TWO BREAKS IN MAIN.

Two breaks in the twelve-inch water main occurred. One was in front of the Tomfobrds building on Court street and the other across the street, in front of the Scollay building. This second break was shut off soon after the water department men appeared on the scene, but the main break in front of the Tomfobrds building was harder to locate, and for over an hour and a half tons of water gushed out of the street and poured over the adjoining streets and into nearby cellars.

Some of the water poured into the Scollay square section of the East Boston tunnel, and a little into the main subway, but not enough to cause any damage.

As fast as the water reached the street, it seemed to freeze and Court street, Cornhill and State street were coated with ice. Teams and automobiles passing over this glare of ice encountered difficulty and many pedestrians suffered falls as a result of the accident.

Only one accident was reported. That of Mrs. Jennie Barbour of Paris street, East Boston. She slipped on the ice on a Court street crossing and was taken to the Relief Hospital, where it was found that she had an injured back and side.

Many telephones were temporarily out of commission by the flooding of the manholes where the conduits are laid. Among those affected was the entire switchboard at police headquarters and many of the main wires of the Western Union Company. The wires of the Automatic Fire Alarm Company were also cut off for a time.

Losers from the water damage were the New England Savings Bank, the Puritan Trust Company, the United States Trust Company, Ehrlich & Company and the Scollay Square Haberdashery. Early today it was impossible to estimate the damage caused by the flood, but it is stated by the police it would be heavy.

CRUDE OIL JUMPS 10 CENTS A BARREL

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 6.—The Joseph Zep Purchasing Agency today announced an advance of 10 cents a barrel in the price of Pennsylvania crude oil to $2.50. This is the highest price at which this grade has sold in a number of years. Other grades of Eastern crude oil were raised proportionately.

TOWN MEETING DAY HAS MANY CONTESTS

A large number of the 321 towns of Massachusetts held their annual meeting today, with many heated contests. It is not believed that there will be many changes in the license vote.

In Watertown the principal issue was the use of the Union stockyards as a base for war horses for the allies, while at Bedford the license question was expected to draw a large vote. The town went for license three years ago and has remained "wet" ever since.

Former Senator Charles A. Dean, chairman of the Wakefield Water Board and candidate for re-election, was the storm centre in that town's election, mainly because of charges of extravagance, politics and misrepresentation in the water department.

In Arlington interest centred in the three-cornered contest for the three-year term on the Board of Public Works, and a five-cornered contest for the three positions on the Lexington Board of Selectmen was expected to draw out a record vote in that town.

ECHO OF FERNCROFT.

In Middleton, Otis Wilkins, who was defeated last year, and was again a candidate for selectman that threatened to go to the Supreme Court if three of the present members of the board allowed their names to be voted on. He charged that these men, Hazen K. Richardson, Maurice E. Tyler and James Ogden, who were also registrars of voters, were involved last year in the Ferncroft Inn vote scandal. The No-License Leaguers alleged that a number of voters had been illegally registered, and the registrars struck a few names off the voting list, but allowed the majority to remain. The ins at that time was conducted by Harry K. Mansfield, to whose influence Mr. Wilkins lays his defeat.

The case was called last year at the jury session of the criminal court, but was put over. Mr. Wilkins holds that the status of the three selectmen had not been decided, and that they should not allow their names to be voted on.

The contest for tree warden, for which office there are three candidates, was the most interesting to be settled in Winthrop, while Belmont had but one contest—that between John A. L. Odde, nominated for selectman in the caucus, and Torrance Parker, running on nomination papers.

"ECONOMY" IN SAUGUS.

The economy policy of Selectman Frank P. Bennett of Saugus, and his declaration for the abolition of the police department, were expected to draw a large vote in that town. Sharon, for the first time in its history, elected the full complement of officials, and the Brookline town meeting does not take place until tomorrow.

Bridgewater had contests between candidates for selectmen, constables and library trustees, in Whitman eight candidates contested five places on the board of selectmen; in Hanover Highway Surveyor Frank W. Bonney was opposed by Otis Mann and Joshua Studley for re-election; in West Bridgewater the largest registration in its history brought out heavy vote on the contest for Road Commissioner George G. Tucker for re-election against Henry O. Davenport.

SENATE TO BURY COLOMBIA TREATY

MEXICANS KILL AMERICAN FAMILY

By International News Service.

New York, March 6.—Stories of outrages committed against Americans in Mexico were brought here today when the Ward liner Esperanza arrived from Mexican ports. "Order and safety are virtually unknown except in or near certain cities," said Charles P. Brewster of Washington.

"I saw many affidavits describing the most revolting outrages committed by Mexican soldiers and bandits. One of these told how an officer and two soldiers massacred a Texas negro, his wife and their daughter at their home near Tampico.

"The ruffians first attacked the women and then killed the entire family.

"But at the home of William Ward, a white man, the Mexicans encountered disaster. Ward and his twenty-year-old wife lived near the negro family. Their house stood on a superstructure which above the ground to protect it from dampness.

"When Ward refused the bandits' terms for admittance they began firing through the floors. Placing his wife in comparative safety, Ward leaped through a window with a repeating rifle in his hands. His first shot killed the officer, his second fatally wounded one of the soldiers and the third killed the second soldier, who by this time had been seized with panic and was running away.

"Ward then fled into Tampico with his wife and was played by the American consul upon a tanker bound for Galveston."

WHITE TRUCKS PREDOMINATE in this Country TWO to ONE

THE truck users of this country purchase each year twice as many White Trucks as trucks of any other make, and further recognize their superiority by paying a higher purchase price for White Trucks. This predominance is not confined to a few localities or special lines of business. It is nation wide, among all classes of users, ranging from retail butchers to the great packers, from small municipalities to the United States Government, from local oil distributers to the chief refining companies, from small retail merchants to the big department stores. A significant feature of White Truck distribution is the high percentage of multiple and repeat purchases by concerns whose transportation experts know exactly what a given truck is worth.

STABILITY OF SERVICE AND PERMANENCE OF ORGANIZATION

Large output warrants a degree of service to White owners which no lesser distribution can support. It insures also a stability and permanence of organization on which owners can confidently rely — no inconsiderable asset in these days of elimination and consolidation in the motor industry. The purchase of a White Truck is an investment with high net earning power behind it and with permanence, both of truck value and of White Company service.

MORAN IS RIGHT AT WEIGHT

Challenger Tips Beam at 202 After Run Over Bronx Roads—That's His Ring Weight.

NEW YORK, March 6.—Frank Moran, Champion Willard's coming opponent, moved into his training quarters at Del Hawkins' roadhouse in the Bronx late Saturday night and Sunday morning went for a jog on the road, accompanied by Willie Lewis, his chief handler.

Moran's jaunt through the wilderness constituted his only work of the day. Lewis, who trained the Pittsburgher for both of his bouts with Coffee, felt that Moran, by virtue of his strenuous work at Saratoga the past fortnight, was entitled to a rest.

So in the afternoon Moran laid off. He weighed in at 202 pounds, but this was before he was inspected by 400 curious boxing fans. Nor was his weight after dinner announced. Lewis, however, stated that his charge would come in at from 202 to 205 March 25.

Moran was careful to again take to the road this morning. In the afternoon he will indulge in the first of his gymnasium labors since the articles for the big battle were signed. He will box with Bartley Madden, Billy McKinnon of Boston and Dan Daly.

Daily, Lewis pointed out, is six feet five inches tall and was engaged solely because his jaw is the same distance from the floor as Willard's.

"Everybody who speaks about Willard," stated Moran, "talks about his great size. Has he got anything besides size? The bigger he is, the easier he will be to hit—that's the way I look at it."

HARRY WILLS GETS NIFTY RING LABEL

New York, March 6.—Harry Wills, the elongated New Orleans heavyweight, who is scheduled to again try conclusions with Sam Langford in the star bout at the Broadway Sporting Club, Brooklyn, tomorrow night, should feel proud of the new title awarded him. The "Mohawk with saffron-hued Apollo" is the way the amiable press agent serving Willie Langford believes he will be able to show Brooklyn fans just how he managed to stick over the knockout in their last affair at New Orleans, while Wills is out for revenge.

LEWIS OUT TO TOSS FOUR MEN IN AN HOUR

By International News Service.

New York, March 6.—"Strangler" Lewis, who claims the catch-as-catch-can wrestling championship, has agreed to throw four men within an hour at Madison Square Garden tonight. He will forfeit $500 to either member of the quartet surviving fifteen minutes. In other bouts, Wladek Zbyszko will go to the mat with Hans Ashan, the German. Dr. Roller takes on Tommy Draak of Holland and Youssuf Hussane will wrestle Christenson, the Dane.

LEACH CROSS GOES BACK OF LEONARD

New York, March 6.—Leach Cross, out of the ring for good, he claims, is handing Lightweight Benny Leonard for his ten-round bout with Johnny Dundee at Madison Square Garden Wednesday night. Cross will continue to look after Leonard's physical welfare and also prepare him for his set-to with Shamus O'Brien at the Harlem Sporting Club March 17.

OLD AD WOLGAST ON WITH CHAMP WELSH

Milwaukee, March 6.—Lightweight Champion Freddie Welsh and Ad Wolgast meet in a ten-round bout here tonight. Wolgast gave Welsh all he wanted when they met in New York until the arm went back on him in the eighth round.

New York, Monday, March 6.

SUNDAY being a day of rest, I took advantage of it to forget all about my training stunts. The fact that it was the Sabbath prevented me from doing any real work, for I never violate Da Lord's day unless it is absolutely necessary. I will say for the bunch of us that we appreciate this rest, for within the past few days we have been exerting ourselves quite some.

Nobody turned out from under the sheets until 7 o'clock and I was first to brave the air. The other members of the camp were not slow in following me, so by seven-thirty we were all togged up fit to take a nice long walk.

In traveling through Central Park we kept pegging away at a pace that was a full brother to a walk. The air was so bracing and exhilarating that we took an extra long jaunt, going as far as Grant's Tomb and down Riverside Drive.

Champion Firm Believer in Fresh Air.

Coming down Riverside Drive I was struck by the number of kiddies out so early in charge of their nurses. And the carmine complexions displayed by these young citizens spoke volumes for the value of fresh air.

This is a hobby with me, fresh air, and I can't yell loud enough to tell everybody that plenty of ozone is invaluable and absolutely necessary for any person that desires good health.

I feel that the runs and walks each morning are more valuable to me for getting in shape for a hard battle than almost any other form of exercise. Well, it was close to 9 o'clock when we arrived at the hotel and the welcome hot baths. When I scrambled out of the tub I was laid out and was treated to an extra good massage. Then all hands went to church and sauntered back in time for the noon meal.

Big Jess Climbs Into Bed at 9 o'clock.

During the afternoon we took another stroll on Riverside Drive and then a long automobile drive. About 5 o'clock we returned and then it was a drive over to Jack Curley's house for another dinner. About 9 o'clock we broke away and arrived at the sleeping quarters where it didn't take us long to turn in.

It has been decided to lengthen my sparring contests this week. With six days of work under my belt I can announce positively that I feel in grand condition. The few pounds of flabby flesh that it was necessary for me to get rid of is disappearing and I'm weighing four pounds less today than when I started training.

Three more practically twenty days ahead of me to work for this bout and that is loads of time to get yourself into condition.

HARVARD PERSONALS

IT is not so certain that John Morgan will be re-elected captain of the hockey team when the candidates get together this week to pick next Winter's leader.

MORGAN got the post last year, though he was only a sophomore. Jack Wylde's clever goal tending for two seasons is going to gain him many votes.

"MACK" Baldridge, captain of the Yale wrestling team showed his mettle in the New England Intercollegiates. The Yale lime man has set for going through two seasons undefeated. Capt. Lou, Tech's Chinese star, has made a fine impression.

BENNETT, another Yale champion grappler, made continual use of a "brother scissors." Captain Ward of Brown, and O'Keefe of Tufts both being hurt enough to cry out.

MANAGER BRADLEY of the wrestling team announces that the New England amateur wrestling championship meet will be staged at the Boston Y. M. C. U. The date has not been picked.

WARWICK NAMED COACH

Arthur Warwick of Toronto has been engaged to coach the Harvard lacrosse team. Practice will start March 15. The prospects for a winning team are not encouraging, as many of the old stars, including Earl Wanamaker and W. E. Nightingale, have been lost by graduation.

NEW YORK RING TALK

NEW YORK, March 6.—Pal Moore of Philadelphia will try a comeback tonight when he stacks up against Allie Nack at the Olympic A. C.

YOUNG BROWN and Walter Mohr swap punches in Schenectady tonight. Next Monday night Johnny Mario, the speed demon of Utica, will trade punches with Jimmy Coffey.

JOHNNY DUNDEE and Benny Leonard are letting out an extra peg in their training, winding up for their battle at Madison Square Garden Wednesday night.

DANNY MORGAN has signed "Battling" Levinsky up for two more fights. March 17 he is scheduled to try conclusions with the Gale Kid of the East New York A. C. while on the night following he hooks up with Bartley Madden to Long Island City.

ESTHER "Kid" Williams or Pete Herman will be the opponent of Al Shubert at Elm Rink, New Bedford, Mass., two weeks from tonight.

GEORGE ASHE and Eddie Kinley have been matched to meet at the New York A. C. Saturday night. The former Boston grocery boy says he will flatten Kinley.

GEORGE CHANEY of Baltimore has been matched for a ten-round bout with "Patsey" Haley in Cincinnati one week from tonight.

RING REMARKS

IT'S to be Johnny Howard of Bayonne, N. J., and "Sailor" Grande of California, middleweights, in the big bout at the Armory A. A. show at the Hippodrome, tomorrow night.

IVY LEWIS sisters both battlers will be on the ground today. Danny Morgan, pilot of Jack Britton, "Battling" Levinsky and Mars Wells, has Grande in tow, while Al McMurry, who showed here last week with Frankie Nelson and "Italian Joe" Gans, will chaperone Howard.

EVER since Grande came East and went to work for Morgan, the New York manager has claimed that the Coast chap is the positive fortune coming thing of the 158-pounders. He's put up right, they say, and is a rough and hardy workman.

M'MURRAY claims he is going to take the jinx off his Boston invasion this trip. Both Nelson and Grande disappointed last week. As for Howard, who has been boxing regularly and winning the bulk of his starts, Al claims he is as good as they come among the middleweights and that Grande is in for a voluptuous lambasting.

GRANDE and Howard mixed in Philadelphia a short time ago. It is Ivy Lewis' claim the bout was a beauty; one of the best of the entire Winter in the Unconscious City.

AL REIDY of Chelsea and Tommy McFarland of the North End will come together in the semi-final "the six-round pairs will be Teddy Murphy and Steve Phillings and Young Bruno and John Camp.

JOE McCARTHY books for Light-weight Johnny Lore to join him here today. Lore is coming down from Montreal for a twelve-round skirmish with Walter Butler of Revere at Woonsocket tomorrow night.

M'CARTHY also has Johnny Dono-van, the promising South Boston bantamweight, matched with Johnny Hayes of New York, for a ten-round muss at Thornton, R. I., Wednesday night.

ACCORDING to press dispatches Jack Britton has just got through out-stepping Ted "Kid" Lewis in Buffalo and New York. With the two crack welters matched to go twenty rounds in New Orleans either April 17 or 24, the question of supremacy between them will be settled once for all.

GEORGE FREEMAN, Mike Glover's manager, intends challenging the winner on behalf of his charge. Mike hopes Lewis will cover as he figures the Britisher made to order for him. As for Britton, he has been beating South Boston boys jinx. At that, Glover has improved a whole lot since meeting Britton the last time and at this stage of the game is probably right there with Jack.

THE B. M. A. A. has a corking good bout booked for Friday night. The principals are Al Reidy of New Bedford, New England's bantamweight champion and a very near world's champion, and Eddie Kampf, the classy little Californian. This is one bout that should not be missed and Manager Bennett is out with the tip to all members to make their reservations early.

GREENFIELD has booked Terry Brooks and Dave Fowler to mix there at its maiden show. "Ty" Goodwin and Charley Hayes, two hot fire and "fat" rivals, will also go on the other pair showing will be Willie Green and "Kid" Lee.

YOUNG BROWN of Albany, N. Y., who claims the featherweight wrestling championship of the country, is in Boston looking for matches. Young can be reached at 1 Hill Terrace in Gloversville, N. Y. He says that tonsilitor practically fifty pounds and beat him in a handicap match. Hercules agreed to throw Brown three times in an hour. He got but two falls.

ROAKES-NEWMAN IN COMBAT IN BOSTON

Chicago, March 6.—Harry Roakes, Jr., of Chicago and William Newman of New York will battle it out in Boston to determine who shall play Jerry Sutor of Philadelphia for the professional racquet championship. The date of the match has not been named.

BIG POST-SEASON SERIES

Arena Management Aims to Bring Crack St. Paul Seven East—St. Nicks Dodge Issue.

THERE is good prospect of a post-season series between the Arena Hockey Club and the St. Paul, Minn., team. The latter won the McNaughton trophy, which, in the West, is claimed as emblematic of the amateur championship of the country.

As St. Nicholas has refused to meet Arena, giving as their reason the fact that its team disbands in two weeks, the local rink team would welcome a crack at the Westerners.

The refusal of the St. Nicks to meet the local team is one of the poor features of the season. Every inducement was offered the New Yorkers for a game with the Arena, and the latter management even offered to play in New York.

The St. Nicks meet the B. A. A. and Harvard Club in the Amateur League series and the Arena plays the same teams in the Boston rink. The St. Nicks cannot advance the excuse that they do not play rink teams, for it is a matter of record that the New Yorkers played in New Haven. The Arena Hockey Club is a bona-fide organization with a large membership. It is a chartered club, the same as St. Nicholas.

If the B. A. A. defeats the St. Nicholas team in their match in New York next Saturday night, the two teams will be tied for first place. According to the league rules, if the series ends in a tie the executive committee shall name the rink for the play-off. Coach Winsor would naturally hold out for the Arena and bar St. Nicks for the St. Nicholas rink.

Pete Herman in East and After Johnny Ertle.

Pete Herman, Southland's champion bantamweight and the only boxer in the world holding a decision over Al Shubert, the New Bedford Bearcat, has reached New York with his manager, Remy Dorr. In New Orleans, February 7, Herman held his own with "Kid" Williams, who lost his title on a foul to Johnny Ertle, in a slashing twenty-round battle.

Dorr, in a letter to the AMERICAN, claims Ertle is shielding his charge. "New Bedford offered Ertle $2,000 to box Herman twelve rounds to a decision, but he spurned the bid," writes Dorr. "Our first match in the East will be to a decision, which shows we mean business. Herman has signed to meet Frankie Brown in Baltimore March 17. It will be fifteen rounds with a world's hung up.

"Here are a few of the boys Herman holds decisions over: Eddie Campi, twenty rounds; Louisiana, twenty rounds; Al Shubert, fifteen rounds; knocked out Eddie Coulon, four rounds; knocked out Jimmy Walsh, four rounds; knocked out K. O. Eggers twice; defeated Johnny Solberg in eight rounds, and won from Artie Simons in ten rounds."

More than likely New Bedford promoters will bring Herman on for a brush with Shubert. A meeting between these two whirlwinds should mean a $4,000-$5,000 house.

ZELLER IN A NEW LEAGUE

North Adams, March 6.—Jack Zeller, former owner of the Pittsfield club, is one of the prime movers in the proposed new baseball league, embracing North Adams, Pittsfield, Greenfield, Northampton, Brattleboro and Bennington.

HARVARD TO SEND 13 MEN

Winter's Bulkiest Squad Will Compete at Games in Philadelphia Next Saturday Night.

HARVARD will be represented at the seventh annual indoor carnival of the Meadowbrook Field Club next Saturday by the largest string of athletes it has entered in any meet this Winter.

In all, thirteen men will sport the Crimson colors, and, according to present plans, will leave for Philadelphia at midnight Friday.

The short distance relay, comprised of Captain Bingham, Westmore, Willcox, Eddie Teschner and Tom Pennypacker, will be taken along for the team race. In order to conserve the strength of Bingham and Willcox for the relay, in which Harvard will meet several other college teams, including Pennsylvania, neither man will compete in the other events, the majority of which are handicap affairs.

Teschner will try his speed in the 50-yard dash and 440-yard run. Pennypacker, Alexander Biddle and Henry Minot will also toe the mark in the quarter-mile, while the latter is to take part in the 50-yard hurdles.

In the field events, J. Oliver Johnstone is down for action in the running high jump. The ole vault will claim George Blydock, who is doing startling work in the baseball cage, and Clarence Robbins, a novice. The other event to have Harvard contestants will be the 15-pound shot, with "Wink" Rollins, Art Lyman and Earl Roberts as entries.

KEMPTON TO ENTER YALE

Herbert Kempton of Malden, Exeter's crack quarterback, is to enter Yale, it is reported today. Colleges are after him, but he plans sticking with "Tad" Jones, according to his friends.

Magee Helps Dock Boat

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 6.—Just before 4 o'clock this morning the good ship City of Montgomery, with several baseball players, as well as newspaper men aboard, made fast in this fair town and the second leg of the journey to the training camp on the part of the Boston contingent was finished.

At 8:45 the party headed for Miami, where Manager Stallings arrived yesterday.

The trip from New York was one of the pleasantest in the history of the Savannah line. The steamer went the distance with scarcely a motion and there were few if any cases of seasickness among those making up the Boston party. Sherwood Nottingham Magee, former Mayor of Warren, Pa., remarked more than once that the city of Montgomery was several leagues better than the steamer Merrimac, on which he once journeyed South with the Philadelphia Club.

Business Manager Hapgood, as well as "Dick" Rudolph, passed up the trip and both of them fail to realize that which they missed. Off Cape Hatteras the ship had something on almost any scenic railway at Revere Beach. After that point was passed there wasn't much to differentiate between the trip and a voyage to Nantasket Beach. Prior to reaching Hatteras there was a trifle of roughness, but nothing to speak of.

When the party finally boarded the ship it included, in addition to these baseball players who left Boston, Sherwood Magee, Walter Maranville, Eddie Fitzpatrick, Edgar Collins, Joe and Maurice Shannon and the original party. On the hunt the fellows met Maffit Flaherty, the well-known lifeguard and referee, who, accompanied by Mrs. Flaherty, contemplates spending the training season in Miami with the team.

In addition there was Mr. and Mrs. M. Hallett, Miss Hallett and Mrs. George W. Horley, all of Boston. They are bound for Winter Park, Fla., and regret exceedingly that they didn't make arrangements for going to Miami. They, with the other Bostonians, served to make the gathering one big happy family party.

When the boat docked this morning the only members of the Boston party aboard were Sherwood Magee, Joe Shannon and the correspondents. Cunningham Rink, East Milton.

Magee had considerable to do with the warping of the ship into the dock and finally satisfied the officers and all others awake that he is some seaman. The party is due in Miami at 2 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The trip from New York was delayed a few hours through the loading of an extra large cargo, but once under way it went through in shipshape fashion. Captain Burg of the City of Montgomery proved a most genial host and not one of those in the Braves party had any fault to find with the grub, which they missed. Off Cape Hatteras the ship had something on almost any scenic railway at Revere Beach. After that point was passed there wasn't much to differentiate between the trip and a voyage to Nantasket Beach. Prior to reaching Hatteras there was a trifle of roughness, but nothing to speak of.

HIGH SCHOOL MEET DOWN FOR MARCH 25

The eighth annual indoor meet of the Boston High School Field and Track League is carded for the East Armory, on East Newton street, for Saturday afternoon, March 25. There will be events for juniors, intermediates and seniors. Trial heats in the 160, 220, 300, 600 and 1,000-yard runs will be held Friday afternoon, March 24, at the Armory, while all field events will take place at 2:30 p. m. Thursday, March 23, in the drill hall of the English High and Latin Schools.

Speaker Won't and Speaker Will; Fans Must Take Choice

DALLAS, Tex., March 6.—According to Captain Larry Doyle and other veteran members of the New York Giants, who ran over from the Marlin training camp for exhibition games here Saturday and yesterday, Tris Speaker, the Red Sox's noted centerfielder, not only denies he has signed a new contract with President Lannin, but states he is a holdout in the full sense of the term.

Speaker, according to the New York players, will absolutely refuse to stand for any cut in salary. He claims he is worthy of every dollar he is seeking from the Boston club, they aver he told them, and will not sign until his terms are met.

From Hubbard City, Tex., Speaker's home town, word reached Boston today that Tris has made up his mind to sign a contract calling for $10,000, it is reported, or will either mail the document on to President Lannin at once, or deliver it to Manager Carrigan when he reaches Hot Springs the last of the week.

The two Texas stories do not jibe. Lannin has stated the past several days he was confident Speaker would swing into line at an early date, too.

ENGLISH GOLFERS ABANDON TRIP HERE

London, March 6.—British golf professionals will not invade the United States this year. It was announced today that Vardon, Taylor and Braid had abandoned their projected American tour as unwise.

BASEBALL BY WIRE

New Orleans, La., March 6.—The Cleveland Indians, with Coveleski and Bagby, each twirling three innings, and O'Neill and Daly dividing backstop work, defeated New Orleans 9-5.

Chicago, March 6.—Manager Tinker of the Cubs chaperoned twenty players to Tampa yesterday, a special train carrying the entire party, which totalled seventy. The Cubs reach their training camp Sunday morning, where some dozen other players will be awaiting them. Pitcher Seaton and Outfielder Flack, the two remaining hold-outs, have swung into line.

San Antonio, Tex., March 6.—The Cardinals, defeated by the San Antonio team Saturday won the Sunday game—a great waitfest—11-9.

Cincinnati, March 6.—The Reds, eighteen strong and in charge of Manager Herzog, left for the Shreveport, Louisiana camp yesterday. Practice starts tomorrow, with Herzog expecting a full squad from the start.

Baltimore, March 6.—Eddie Collins and Fritz Maisel, the two new American League players, are among the directors and stockholders in Jack Dunn's Baltimore (International League) club.

Waxahachie, Tex., March 6.—The Tiger battery men got back to work with new vigor this morning, following their day off Sunday. Word came from Detroit that Texas Cobb and several other veterans will join the squad during the week.

Macon, Ga., March.—Manager Donovan has begun to weed out the Yankees. The first player to go was Gene Harden, the outfielder, who was sent to Toronto.

Charlottesville, Va., March 6.—Fairly warm weather permitted the gridmen to take their final outdoor practice today. It is now announced that the first game of the season between the Nationals and the University of Virginia nine will be played Wednesday.

Mineral Wells, Tex., March 6.—Reed and Scott, pitchers, comprise the White Sox training squad here today. They did no twirling, awaiting the arrival of a catcher to work with, but spent several hours chasing flies in the hot sun and running around the diamond.

Marlin, Tex., March 6.—The Giant "rookie" are a cocky bunch this morning. With the victories to their credit over the Yanks they are in practice with the regulars. The latter will go to Dallas the end of the week, determined to better the scores made by the Colts.

Daytona, Fla., March 6.—After their fishing trip yesterday the Dodgers were again ready to take up Spring practice from fins on. "No more boating," is the watchword.

Lee Magee Makes a Fine Start as a Yankee

By International News Service.

Macon, Ga., March 6.—J. Franklin Baker wired Manager Donovan of the Yankees from Baltimore yesterday, stating he was southward bound and would reach the training camp today.

Macon, Ga., March 6.—Having spent nearly two weeks in putting his recruits through the stage of paths and aches attendant upon the early days of training, Manager Hill Donovan now intends to put them to the acid test to determine how much good they will be to the Yankees.

Beginning this afternoon he will put on a game every day between picked teams from his squad, the regulars being opposed to the rookies, with recruit pitchers working for both sides. He was so pleased with the results of the practice game Saturday that he decided to include this in his program of training stunts. The boys, however, will not escape the usual workout in the morning.

The work of the young pitchers in Saturday's game was particularly gratifying to Donovan. Russell, Brady, Markle and Mogridge all showed fine form. Only four bases on balls were issued in spite of the fact this was the first time any of them had tried to pitch.

The work of Maisel, Gilhooley and Lee Magee at bat and on the bases was also very pleasing to Donovan.

Toledo, O., March 6.—W. H. Heenan, Jackson, Mich., with 626, took the lead in the individual event in the American Bowling Congress. J. Broderick and R. Mollenkopf, Cincinnati, with 1153, are in front in the two-man event.

BOWLING

THE first tournament of the Greater Boston Chapter, Atlantic Coast Bowling Association, scheduled to start tonight at the North Station alleys, has been postponed, owing to a rush of business at the very last minute, the committee in charge of the affair was unable to straighten out matters in time for the opening. No new date has been selected as yet, but the tournament will probably get under way tomorrow or Wednesday.

* * *

PAUL POEHLER and Dick Rouse will hook up this week in a twenty-string match. If Poehler succeeds in defeating Rouse, he will then go after a return engagement with Archie Walsh, who defeated him for the championship. The first half of the match will be staged at the Carlton alleys tomorrow night, while the final strings will be rolled at Murray Thursday evening.

* * *

FIRST and second positions in the Typewriter League are in good as settled, as Remington Firsts had a lead of twelve points over Royal, and the latter leads the third team by seven points. The season has only five more weeks to run. There will be a hot fight for third and fourth places, however, as four teams have a good chance to land in either of these positions yet.

* * *

THE team representing the office of Kaler, Carney, Liffler & Co. in the Fire Insurance League, broke the three-string record by getting a total of 1570 in their match against Rice & Whitney. Cronin of the former team equalled the individual record of the league, getting 367, individual three strings.

PRES. WILSON WILL OPEN BIG TOURNEY

Washington, March 6.—The Atlantic Coast bowling tournament opens Monday night, April 3, and it has been designated "Woodrow Wilson Night" in honor of the President, who has agreed to open the big league by rolling a specially designed and engraved ball down alley No. 8, the centre of the sixteen-alley layout.

New Orleans Out to Settle 135-Lb. Muddle

By ED. CURLEY.

New York, March 6.—Jimmie Johnston is back from New Orleans, where Ted (Kid) Lewis gathered additional honors by whipping Harry Stone. He has much conversation regarding the lightweight class. From what James bubbles it appears as if Freddie Welsh is to be relieved of his world's title if he doesn't defend his crown very shortly.

"It's this way," Johnston said. "Dominick Tortorich, the New Orleans promoter, is willing to hang up a purse for Freddie to chase in a twenty-round encounter. Tortorich wants Freddie to fight the winner of a twenty-round setup between Joe Mandot and the winner of the Dundee-Leonard bout at the Garden. Tortorich will make a liberal offer for Mandot and his opponent and will then give $10,000 for a battle between that victor and Welsh.

"What is more important," added Johnston, "is that Tortorich has his mind settled to force Welsh into defending his title. If Freddie refuses to come to terms, then Tortorich is going to hang up a gold belt emblematic of the lightweight championship and proclaim the winner of the bauble the champion."

BRAVES' BOSS AT MIAMI

Stallings Reaches Camp with First Squad—Wilhoit on Deck, but Bill James Missing.

MIAMI, Fla., March 6.—Manager George Stallings of the Braves, accompanied by the handful of players who have been his guests on his plantation at Haddock, Ga., for the past fortnight, prominently including Captain John Evers, reached Miami, the club's 1916 training camp, last night.

They found the weather ideal, bright and warm, and learned the thermometer has been standing high up in the 80's the past two weeks.

Stallings admitted he was disappointed when he failed to find Pitcher Bill James here upon his arrival. The manager was confident the Coast boy would be on deck, but was doomed to disappointment.

Stallings is sure James is on his way South and looks for him to get in today or tomorrow at the latest. Jim Wilhoit, the Coast League outfielder, is on deck.

A New Klondike!

Death Valley finally made to give up its gold after years of constant struggle

In Death Valley, California, there is so much gold that no man can estimate it. Men have been trying to get it out for more than fifty years, but the horrible conditions of the desert have made a mockery of their efforts, exacting a fearful toll of human life and driving hundreds of prospectors insane.

But now the desert is conquered, and it will not be long before its gold is flowing out in a steady stream, bringing riches beyond the dreams of avarice to many people and making a new crop of American millionaires.

The conqueror is the motor truck. A few weeks ago specially designed trucks were tried out and proved a success, and this last great American storehouse of wealth thereby opened to all who care to enter it. It is altogether likely that another great "gold rush" will occur, similar to that of the Klondike.

The story of this fight for Death Valley's treasure and of how success was won is as thrilling and absorbing as any fiction to every man who has any of the spirit of adventure in him. Especially so since there is every reason to believe that the gold that has been located is only a small part of the total, and, as you read, the thought will come to you that perhaps you might find some of it yourself if you went there. It is all vividly told in the March number of

The Manicure Lady

She Concludes That She Still Has a Great Deal to Learn

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"THAT was a awful interesting gent which just went out," said the Manicure Lady. "Gee, it must be fine to have a intellegent intellect."

"He didn't look so wise," said the Head Barber.

"Not to you, George, not to you," said the Manicure Lady, "because you ain't very intellectual yourself. You are kind of worldly, George, but your bean ain't full of culture, like that gent's. He was telling me about a gent named Homer, that wrote the first real poetry. I was kind of interested, because I thought Mister Longfellow was about the first poet, but this gent told me that there was poets two thousand years before that.

"He said there was a poetress named Mrs. Sappho that won prizes for poems long before the ones I always read. I thought all the folks two thousand years ago lived in caves and couldn't read or write. That shows how much I've got to learn."

"Don't you care," said the Head Barber. "You know enough to hold a good job, and you've got a lot of good friends, like me. Don't be discontented, kid. Look in the glass when you feel sad, and cheer up."

"LOOKS AIN'T MUCH"

"Looks ain't much in this world," said the Manicure Lady, "though goodness knows, George, I am glad my features is kind of regular. My lot would be hard if my face wasn't on straight, but sometimes I think it would be a lot nicer to have a wonderful mind than a wonderful head of hair. Hate is kind of common, compared to brains, and lots of people with fine hair don't know for sure what date the Fourth of July comes on."

"You'd never be happy if you are all the time looking for something you can't have, and forgetting all the good points you've got," said the Head Barber.

"But there ain't no harm in wishing you had a good education," said the Manicure Lady. "Of course, you think you've got education enough just because you can make out the words in the racing chart, but often a girl like me gets to thinking of higher and better things and I get to wishing that I had went to Wellesley."

THE COMPARISON

"You can make as much money as a school teacher," said the Head Barber, "and have things easier, and more bright folks to talk to."

"Meaning folks like you, I spose," said the Manicure Lady. "You despise yourself, ain't it so, George?"

"I ain't taking off my hat to no college professor," said the Head Barber. "Them old ducks with the side whiskers knows all about ancient history, but one of them couldn't find his way to Babylon Long Island, if you put him on the right train."

"You're jealous, George; just jealous," said the Manicure Lady. "All of them delights of a cultured mind is denied to you, so you make out there ain't no such pleasure. If you had went to college think how different you might have been."

"I don't know," said the Head Barber. "I'd rather be a good barber than a poor bookkeeper."

Question of Relationship

"Look here, Binks," said Jinks, "what I want to know is—who am I? A short time ago I proposed to a girl who, however, said she would prefer to be excused. I, therefore, excused her, but a year later married her mother. Then my trouble began.

"Soon after I was married, my father married the girl who had rejected me—in other words, my daughter. At least, up to that time she had been my daughter. But of course when she married my father she became my mother. But that is not the worst, as you will realize when I tell you that, by marrying my daughter my father, naturally, became my son.

"It would seem, therefore, that my father is my son and my daughter is my mother; in which case I ask you once more—who am I?"

"So far as I can make out," replied Binks, "your father's mother-in-law, your wife—must be your grandmother, and therefore, as you are your grandmother's husband, you appear to be your own grandfather! But, of course, I may be wrong."

Grace Darling's Talks to Girls

No. 3—The Way to Find Friends in the World

By Grace Darling,

The Charming Young American Moving Picture Star.

Copyright, 1913, International News Service.

A GREAT many girls complain that they have no friends, and feel that they are most unjustly treated because they are not popular in their social sets.

If these girls would ask themselves the question: "Why SHOULD people like me?" instead of: "Why DON'T people like me?" they would get some information that would be of untold helpfulness to them.

Why SHOULD people like us unless we are friendly, agreeable, cheery, companionable? There is no reason that they should, and, as a matter of fact, they don't.

I have never known a girl who was lonely, and friendless, and left out of everything, who hadn't herself entirely to blame. Sometimes it's because she is a natural born cat, one of those spiteful, spitty creatures who to save their lives can't help clawing you on your tender spots.

The kind of girl, you know, who will take all of the pleasure out of your new ring by saying, "What a pretty little ring. It's wonderful how well those cheap little chip diamonds make up, isn't it?" Or who will congratulate an engaged girl by telling her that she's glad Tom has found somebody who was willing to marry him at last, as he has been refused by every other girl in the set.

Why should a girl who goes through life using her tongue like a stiletto, stabbing everybody with whom she comes in contact, expect to be liked and for people to want to know her about?

Sometimes the unpopular girl is just plain selfish. She seizes the best of everything for herself. She monopolizes all of the men that she can, and when she meets a new man, she would die before she would introduce him to another girl.

Now society is run on the give-and-take plan, and just because the selfish girl believes that she can always take and never give, she overreaches herself, and in the end Miss Piggy is shelved.

Sometimes the reason that a girl has no friends is because she is a spoil sport. She never wants to do what other people want to do. If the others want to dance, she wants to skate. If the others want to play tennis, she wants to go paddling.

Or she is one of the finnicky kind of girls that has to have everything exactly right before she can enjoy it. She can't eat unless she can have a certain kind of food cooked in a particular manner. She can't sit backwards on a car, or walk in the sun, or sit in a draught, and she has to be fussed with so much that she simply isn't worth the trouble.

She's a wet blanket on any jolly little party, and after an experience or two in trying to please her, and listening to her complaints, everybody decides that the best place for her is her own home. So they leave her there.

The real reason, however, that most friendless girls don't have friends is because they haven't the friendly spirit themselves. They want other people to make all the advances. They expect other people to go out of their way to hunt them up, and show them attention, and to pry them out of their shells of reserve.

What conceit! What arrogance! What peculiar worth and charms has any one got that makes it worth busy people's time and trouble to seek a girl out, and make friends with her in spite of herself?

There are too many agreeable and friendly people who are ready to meet us half way and make themselves pleasant to us to bother with the cranky and grouchy and people with "ways" that we would have to put up with if we have anything to do with them. So we leave these to their own melancholy companionship.

If you are not popular and have no friends, be sure it's your own fault, girls. Look into your hearts, and see what's the matter with yourself that people don't like you; for, after all, the world's just a looking glass that gives us back our own reflections. If we turn a sour face on it, it scowls back to us, but if we smile at it, it laughs back at us.

Be friendly, and you'll have friends. Reach out the glad hand to other people, and they'll give you the clasp that makes you one of the great brotherhood and sisterhood of humanity.

Myra Webb's Daughter Gives Her Mother Some Advice on How to Battle with Poverty

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

Copyright, 1913, Star Co.

CHAPTER III.

THE sense of elation did not last. Unfortunately, it seldom does. In the first excitement of trouble, when a common anxiety draws two people closer together than usual, self-sacrifice—even suffering itself—seems to have about it a halo of romance and martyrdom. For the moment one feels equal to any test of courage.

But when the excitement gives way to the drudgery of everyday existence the halo is dissipated and an appreciation of the commonplaceness of life weighs one down. possibly a soldier would bear with more fortitude the three days' experience of a Gettysburg than the less strenuous, but equally deadly, experience of a Valley Forge.

So by the time Myra Webb had explained changed conditions to her daughter romance was fast disappearing from the situation. She had taken the girl into her confidence on the very day on which Horace had imparted his painful news.

Grace had borne the shock well. She was her father's daughter in more ways than one, the mother reflected, as she saw the child steady her twitching lips when she asked: "And what about college?" Then, before Myra could speak, she added: "Of course, it is over for me. I must give up my plans in that direction."

RESIGNATION

Protests that there must be some way of avoiding this disappointment were of no avail, although at first the mother predicted that "something would happen" to make it possible for Grace to complete her two remaining years at Barnard. When, at the end of some days, matters looked even more hopeless than at first, Grace smiled at the older woman's forlorn hope.

"You are like Mr. Micawber, mother," she said in a tone that she strove to make playful. "You are always expecting 'something to turn up.' But in this case it won't. So I am making my plans accordingly."

"What do you mean?"

"I went last week to ask Miss Letson if she could give me a place as teacher in the primary department in her school next Fall. She says that her school will be fuller than ever this next year, and, after talking with me, and consulting with a couple of the professors at college whom she happens to know and in whose English class I have done good work, she has promised to give me a trial."

"And you have arranged all this by yourself, without consulting either your father or me?" the mother exclaimed. "You are wonderful, Grace."

LIKE HER FATHER

She meant the admiration that she expressed. Yet in her heart she wished that the girl felt more sense of dependence on the mother who loved her. Yes—Grace was like her father.

"Why should I trouble you about it, mother?" the girl argued. "If nothing had come of it, you would not have been disappointed. And while it was all in the air, so to speak, why add to your anxiety by talking of an uncertainty?"

The logic was unanswerable, and Myra chided herself for her slight feeling of regret at Grace's independence. And as she felt this self-reproach, she felt more strongly compassion for all that Grace was relinquishing. Crossing the room to the window by which the girl stood, she put her arms about the slender figure.

"Darling," she murmured, "I am so sorry you have had to give up your college course. Somehow, it does not seem right nor fair. Yet, dear, it seems also inevitable."

"Yes, it is," the girl responded. Her voice trembled and she held her mother close for a minute. "But since it is inevitable—why talk of it? You have troubles of your own just now."

So she appreciated that the mother had troubles, did she? Then why not speak out the sympathy that the parent longs for?

MANY TROUBLES

The "troubles" were many as the weeks passed. It is not an easy task to move from a house into a small apartment. The sunny flat which the Webbs selected was just off Broadway—almost two blocks from the Hudson. It was pleasant enough, but very small. The walls of the living room were lined with book shelves; yet these could not contain half the volumes collected during the years of plenty, and many boxes of books were put in storage.

Myra's desk, at which she hoped to do much writing, must stand in the dining-room. The largest bedroom contained twin beds for husband and wife. Grace's room was small but light. The tiny room for the maid was barely large enough for one person. This made less difference, as the Webbs expected to keep but one maid.

But until Fall Myra and Grace would do all the housework except the washing and ironing. The mother suggested at first that even after the Fall term at school began they might dispense with the services of a domestic. But her daughter objected to this plan.

"You expect to do writing to eke out the family income," she remarked practically. "If you have to perform a housemaid's duties, when will you write?"

"When I have finished the housework each day," the mother replied, "I will have time for several hours of undisturbed writing."

FALSE ECONOMY

"You mean you will try to do brain work after you have exhausted your physical strength on washing dishes, sweeping, dusting and cooking?" Grace queried. "You will find it a mistake to attempt all that, mother. There will be nothing but the dregs of your energy left for your writing. No, this would be foolish and not a bit economical. We will get through the Summer without a servant, but when the Fall comes you must have one."

So it was decided that during the Summer Myra and Grace would do the housework. When the Fall came they would make other arrangements.

Meanwhile Grace took out of the savings bank a small sum she had laid away during her school days in case there might some day be something she wanted very much that her parents might think a foolish desire. And this sum she spent on three lessons a week in stenography and typewriting.

But of this she said nothing to her father or mother. If teaching failed, she told herself, there would be stenography to fall back on.

"There's Nae Mair!"

A minister in a remote part of the Highlands of Scotland was recently, in a sermon to his congregation, speaking at length of the many things around us that are shrouded in mystery and of which we know so little. As he warmed to his subject he became quite eloquent and repeated the oft-quoted expression of Goethe: "More light!" Oh, for more light!"

His surprise may be imagined when after one of these utterances the old sexton, who had been quietly dozing since the commencement of the sermon, awoke with a start, then got up, tiptoed softly into the vestry, seized two additional candles, and, ascending the pulpit stairs, placed them beside the two already there, and in a loud whisper, heard all over the church, remarked:

"Ye maun make do wi' those, for there's nae mair!"

PIMPLY? WELL, DON'T BE!

People Notice It. Drive Them Off With Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights. Cleanse the blood, the bowels and the liver with Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are the successful substitute for calomel—there's never any sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that for which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with "a dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad complexion or pimply face.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints, and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result.

Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists. The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, O.—Advertisement.

Resinol certainly does heal eczema

In our file of reports, covering a period of over twenty years, literally thousands of physicians tell how successful the Resinol treatment is for eczema and similar skin troubles. The first use of Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap usually stops the itching and burning, and they soon clear away all trace of the eruption. No other treatment for the skin now before the public can show such a record of professional approval.

Resinol contains nothing of a harsh or injurious nature and can be used freely even on the most irritated surfaces. Every druggist sells Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap; trial free, Dept. 13-T, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

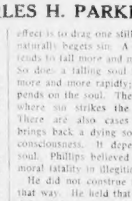
Dr. Parkhurst Says:—



DR. CHARLES H. PARKHURST.

"Self-righteousness has in it a strain that is worse than every-day iniquity." He discusses Vitalized Fiction as a Factor in Moulding Public Opinion and voices some thoughts of value to everyone.

By REV. DR. CHARLES H. PARKHURST

VITALIZED fiction indictionally shaped in pursuance of a moral purpose is the readiest method of cultivating opinion. Conviction of the truth of this proposition leads me to write something respecting David Graham Phillips' The Story of Susan Lenox—Her Fall and Rise," which is being published in Hearst's Magazine.

The book is related by being written with a wholesome purpose. Mr. Phillips had a courageous purpose and he moved to it unfalteringly. The heroine of the novel was born under a cloud.

Susan Lenox Was a Victim of Conventional Injustice.

She was illegitimate. That means she was not legally a girl. Had no right to be too shiny. The world was not a suitable place for her to enter, or rather she was not a suitable thing to enter the world.

Mr. Phillips found so much in his heroine that was true, strong and sweet that the damnation theory smote him. He put her with all sorts of situations and cast her down into every variety of abyss in order to satisfy himself or rather to satisfy others, whether she was a child of Satan or a child of God.

He tortured her by forcibly marrying her to a male creature that was one-fourth man and three-quarters brute, and a filthy, half-witted brute at that. He tortured her by afflicting her with poverty. He tortured her by reducing her to compulsory association with men and women that were of the lowest sorts and low-lived; still more by associating her with men that were refined, elegant and alluring. The peculiar circumstances of her birth probably made her abnormally sensitive to influences that had the flavor of the gutter.

She did not preserve herself altogether unsmirched. It was not part of the author's purpose that she should. It did not lie easily within the scope of human nature that she should. And yet there are two ways in which it is possible for one to be affected by touching the unclean thing; one effect is to drag one still lower. Sin naturally begets sin. A falling body tends to fall more and more rapidly. So does a falling soul tend to fall more and more rapidly; but all depends on the soul. There are cases where sin strikes the soul dead. There are also cases where sin brings back a dying soul to moral consciousness. It depends on the soul. Phillips believed there is no moral fatality in illegitimacy.

He did not construe her birth in that way. He held that illegitimacy defrauded Susan neither of her proper prerogatives nor robbed her of possibilities opening the way to illumination, as true, as womanly, as angelic as those of any other woman. That was the final stroke of discipline that the author inflicted upon Susan. He let her fall and let her feel her shame. That to fall is not necessarily fatal, and that even in the midst of a debased experience there is still room for that kind of moral elasticity that surely comes in the rebound. And so we have the story of the fall, supplemented by the recital of the rise of Susan Lenox.

Misfortune Contains in it no Ethical Guilt.

The entire composition is a sample exhibit of Mr. Phillips' distaste and contempt for conventional injustice. He was not indifferent to the deep injustice that had no place in his creed for virtue that is so enamored of its own rectitude as to be insensible to the sympathetic touch of the fact that sorrow can not to condemn the world but that the world through Him might be saved.

Self-righteousness has in it a vicious strain that is worse than every-day iniquity. "The publican went down to his house justified rather than the pharisee." It is neither religion nor morality to act or feel toward a child born out of wedlock other than toward one born in wedlock. Artificial discriminations are far removed from the beauty of holiness as they are from the dignity of intelligence.

STOCKS AND INVESTMENTS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were strong and markets quiet at noon. There had been no change of moment in the prices from the closing of business yesterday. Coppers improved in tone and there were large gains for a number of industrials. Cuba-American Sugar advanced the most. Other issues to show substantially increased business were Texas Company, Mexican Petroleum, American Coal Products, Pressed Steel Car, Industrial Alcohol, Marine preferred certificates, General Chemical, Lackawanna Steel and Crucible. There was covering of shorts in a number of specialties. The feature of the morning was the supply of stocks was small. It was further evidence of the elimination of weak holders.

Sales included: Criterion Anaconda 4, Chino 1/4, Utah Copper 1/4, Baldwin 1/8, Allis-Chalmers common 1 preferred 3, Studebaker 1, Mexican Petroleum 1, American Steel 1/2, Goodrich Inc. Preferred Steel 2/3, Industrial Alcohol 1/8, Marine preferred certificates 1/2, Republic Iron & Steel preferred 1/2, Cuban Sugar 1/8, American Coal Products 1/2, Merchants Petroleum of Texas 1/2, 2½, 1, 6, Steel for Union Pacific 5, Reading 1/2, New Haven 5/8, Northern Pacific 1/8, Southern Pacific 1/8, Baltimore & Ohio 1/8, Anaconda 5/8, American Smelting and American Can 5/8.

In Boston Alaska Gold was a weak and Butte & Superior a strong stock. Calling bars included Boston & Woods preferred 5, United Fruit 1, Utah Smelting 5, New Haven 5, Butte & Superior 1/2, Utah Copper 1/4, Nipissing 1, Isle Royale 1/2, Osceola 1, Quincy 1/2, Old Dominion 1, and Monarch 1/2.

Among declines were Alaska Gold 1/4 at 1⅝, Boston & Maine 3/4, Copper Range 1/2, and North Butte ¼.

OPENED A TRIFLE UP.

Stocks ruled a trifle higher in New York at the opening, but a few minutes after the start the tone became heavy, the most active stock on Saturday's list, Alaska Gold, showing a loss of ⅜ of 1% at once. Other active issues showed similar losses. Trading began on a fairly large scale.

Opening prices on the Stock Exchange were based on the following quotations at the close of business March 3: Call money, 2½ per cent; time loans, 3 per cent; commercial paper, 3 per cent; sterling exchange, 4.75 for sixty days and 4.78 for demand; francs, 5.80 for cables and 5.81 for demand; marks, 71 for cables and 71⅛ for demand; guilders, 39.50 for cables and 39.75 for demand.

The Lincoln Savings Bank opened its doors for business this morning. It is located at No. 1171 Boylston avenue, Roxbury.

Secretary Redfield & Co report an increase of $2,584,317, or 58.38 per cent, in February sales, compared with a year ago.

E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. are believed to have received powder munition orders totalling about $100,000,000. This accounts for net profits of $55,-848,754 for this concern last year.

ELLIOTT SAYS HIS ROAD FAVORS NEW ENGLAND

By International News Service

Washington, March 6.—Refusal by the railroads to accept freight for the purpose of the establishment of a sliding scale of storage and demurrage charges for the future are the measures best calculated to solve the freight congestion problem at Eastern ports, according to Howard Elliott, chairman of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, who appeared before the Interstate Commerce Commission today.

Mr. Elliott said the road had refused to accept freight except perishable goods and coal for the duration of the embargo. An attempt to furnish New England with raw materials to carry on its business has led the New Haven to admit more Western freight to its tracks than perhaps was wise, Mr. Elliott said.

Mr. Elliott said there is danger of serious demoralization of the passenger service in New England because shippers, unable to get freight cars, are sending their goods by express and parcels post, clogging their fast services and throwing passenger trains behind schedule. He said no car is being made to send back Western cars, and therefore, said Mr. Elliott, the railroads cannot be held to blame for the Western car shortage.

The commissioner in his statement explained that it has no direct jurisdiction in the regulation in the handling of coal cars, but that it is practically helpless to issue orders which will aid to reduce the congestion.

GASOLINE PRICE STILL CLIMBING

The price of gasoline is still soaring. The Texas Oil Company today added another cent to the price of its product and it gallon on the tank wagon basis all over New England and in New York, New Jersey, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, Illinois, Minnesota and Missouri. The Standard Oil Company increased its price a cent a gallon, tank basis, March 2, bringing the price up 25 cents a gallon in the Atlantic seaboard states. The Standard Company added a penny a gallon on February 1 also.

REPORT INCREASE FOR COAL MINERS

New York, March 6—It was reported that the soft coal operators of Indiana, Illinois, Ohio and western Pennsylvania had granted a wage increase to the miners when the morning session of the wage scale conference came to a close at the Hotel McAlpin. However, no official announcement was made.

It was believed that a settlement would be reached soon, as that the agreement could be signed by the general committee tomorrow morning.

SHIPPER OPPOSES NEW HAVEN DIVORCE

Providence, March 6—Henry A. Fifield, manager of the B. & R. Knight mills, testified at the Interstate Commerce Commission hearing on the divorce of the Sound lines from the New Haven today that Mr. Fifield, who is opposed to the divorce, said that his mills ship about 15,000 tons of merchandise yearly principally over the Norwich line. They also receive 40,000 bales of cotton each year, all but 2,000 of which come by way of the Sound lines.

ORDER TARIFF CASE REARGUED

Washington, March 6—The Supreme Court today ordered a reargument of the so-called 5 per cent. case involving the validity of the discriminating duty section of the Underwood tariff law and the disposition of $25,000,000 to government revenues.

60 ON STRIKE AT HOOD RUBBER PLANT

Sixty men employed in the outer sole department of the Hood Rubber Company's plant at Watertown went on strike today, as a result of a new working system, it was learned. The company asked for police protection, but there was no disorder at the plant.

What the Automobile Means to the Human Race ---And to You the Individual

It Is Man's Greatest Aid in Conquering the Power of Inertia and the Power of Gravitation, and THAT IS the Greatest and Most Important of Man's Conquests. Visit Without Fail the Automobile Exposition, Which Is Open Now.

Copyright, 1916, by the Star Company.

WHETHER you own ONE automobile, or TEN automobiles, or NO automobile, do not fail to visit the Automobile Show, which is open this week.

The great exhibition is at the Mechanics Building, Huntington avenue.

There are many automobiles in use in the United States. Those that have automobiles are, of course, much less numerous than those that have none.

This editorial is written particularly for those that as yet have NOT purchased their automobile.

If you have no machine, and even though you have no idea of buying one at present, none the less go to the Automobile Show. Take your wife and your children, make it your business to see and to admire the greatest proof of human ingenuity, the greatest demonstration of American mechanical superiority, and the greatest triumph of human genius since the invention of the steam engine.

The problem of the human race from the very beginning has been THE CONQUEST OF GRAVITATION AND INERTIA.

To GET OVER THE GROUND RAPIDLY was to escape death.

You know how the heavy power of the earth draws us down, all things falling toward it, and all things being moved along its surface with difficulty, because of that power of gravitation which Newton defined.

Running on foot, riding on wild animals that he tamed, swimming through the water, paddling his canoe, driving his ox-cart, spreading his sail to catch the wind, using his trained hawks to bring down game birds, using the speed of dogs to catch deer, the speed of the cheetah leopard to catch antelopes, using the pelican to fish, in every conceivable way man has used and exhausted his ingenuity, always struggling for speed, striving to overcome gravity and its power.

For hundreds of thousands of years the human race lived, depending on its own PHYSICAL force or on the physical force of animals.

Then came the first gigantic step, the invention and utilization of the steam engine.

Ships were moved by steam, loads were moved by steam, the locomotive eventually was developed to draw a thousand passengers at the rate of fifty or sixty miles an hour and faster.

Then came the use of electric power, replacing the horses and the cables for street cars—humanity thought that it had accomplished the great and final wonder.

As a matter of fact, there remained two great final steps in man's conquest of gravitation—his solution of the problem of speed and of free movement.

Those two steps were first, the AUTOMOBILE, and, second, the FLYING MACHINE.

This week in the wonderful Automobile Show you will see, FULLY DEVELOPED, THE MOST MARVELOUS ACHIEVEMENT OF THE HUMAN RACE PRESENTED IN EVERY CONCEIVABLE FORM, FOR RICH AND POOR ALIKE, by the mechanical and business genius of the United States.

The second great step, the flying machine, is on the way. It will be perfected and fully developed here in America, as the automobile has been.

But this is the week of THE AUTOMOBILE, this is the age and this is the country of the automobile, and upon that intelligent thought should be concentrated.

Once-Overs

Most of us have children in school and many are now completing their first semester. Naturally, you want your child to advance as rapidly as possible and at the same time to be understood. Then it should be your desire to assist the teacher in every way possible to accomplish results which are satisfactory. Here are a few words of advice:

Teach your children at home to be prompt in obeying requests or commands.

Teach them to be accurate and truthful.

Help them to learn to concentrate according to their age and mentality.

Let each child have some daily task to perform which is not taxing, but which cannot be put off from day to day. Be sure it is a daily task. In school there is a time for everything, and routine work is always in order.

Make the little ones understand that the teacher is their friend, but at the same time she must be respected and obeyed.

Make them understand that the teacher has a right to demand and it is his or her privilege to enforce the demand.

On the other hand, get acquainted with the one who instructs your children daily and for your mutual benefit see that the child is understood.

How Poisons Warn You

By Woods Hutchinson, M. D.

The World's Best Known Writer on Medical Subjects.

PART TWO.

PRUSSIC acid, tremendous power for slaughter, has actually been utilized commercially in the whale fishery, or in what scattered remnants are left of it.

The harpoon, instead of being thrown by hand in the old-fashioned way, is a short, heavy bolt shot from a gun, and containing in a hollow along one of its sides a "bomb" of prussic acid.

One single shot sent home anywhere in the body and the huge monster gives a convulsive shudder, stiffens and dies within twenty seconds.

The proper name of this ghastly poison is hydrocyanic or cyanic acid, and the salt which it forms with potash, known as cyanide of potassium, or simply cyanide for short, is the commonest form in which it occurs, and is the drug supposed to have been used in the Forest Park tragedy.

Strangely enough, prussic or cyanic acid, deadly as it is, is not only found in considerable amounts in peach blossoms, peach kernels and bitter almonds, so as to make both the latter two quite dangerous to eat in considerable numbers, but is also most widely distributed throughout the vegetable kingdom, and, paradoxic as it may seem, is actually produced in tiny amounts every day in our own bodies. Which is probably one of the reasons why it "goes through us" with such lightning-like rapidity when administered as a poison.

Commercial Value

It has also another commercial utility which is still of extensive and real value, and that is as an insecticide and vermin killer and also as a protective against scale-insects and other parasites in our orchards. The quickest and surest way of exterminating cockroaches, rats, mice, bedbugs, is to turn loose a little hydrocyanic acid gas in the basement and let it permeate.

But you want to be very sure that the building is cleared of all human occupants first, and that the walls dividing it from any adjacent tenement are perfectly sound and airtight, else higher forms of life may be destroyed besides rats and vermin.

In modern orchardry hydrocyanic acid is our chief reliance and, in fact, only "killer" against the now famous San Jose scale, applied to the young trees in the nursery or in the warehouses before they are set out in the orchards.

Poison Handicaps

By most fortunate accident or provision of nature, almost every dangerous poison appears to have some sort of handicap which prevents its easy or frequent use either by accident or design.

So difficult in fact is it for that most contemptible of criminals, the poisoner, to smuggle by all the arts at his disposal a fatal dose of his chosen murderous drug into the stomach of his victim that we have become skeptical of most of the lurid and heart-rending tales told of the deeds of the great professional poisoners of the Middle Ages, like the Borgias and the murderous magicians alleged to be formerly attached to many Oriental courts.

Not that their intentions were not of the heartiest and most "pisenous" imaginable, but that the tools with which they had to work were so few and so clumsy.

We know exactly what they had, for poisons in small doses have always been, rightly or wrongly, highly valued in medicine, and not one ever known to or discovered by humanity has been permitted to pass out of use or be forgotten.

We also know that there is no substance or combination of substances on the face of the earth which will produce the strange and marvelous and, in many cases, long postponed forms of death with which these professional poisoners are accredited. And what is even more significant, we are now able to recognize in quite a number of famous cases of historic poisonings the unmistakable symptoms of putrid food poisons or even of clear-cut disease, such as appendicitis, diabetic or Bright's coma, apoplexy, paralysis, epilepsy, or heart failure.

In-Shoots

It is seldom, when a woman marries a man to reform him, that she is sure whether she has been successful or not.

It is unnecessary to tell a girl that you are in love with her. She is generally aware of the fact long before you are.

When a fellow awakens from love's young dream he often wonders how he ever came to sleep so long.

It is about as well to tell of your good deeds on the tombstone. The world will never remember them otherwise.

Fund to Aid Beginners in Business Life Needed

Many Young Women and Men Unable to Earn Own Livings While Getting Experience Required Before Employers Will Pay Them Adequate Salaries.

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1916, Star Company.

"I AM eighteen years of age and have recently completed a course in bookkeeping and accounting at a business college. Now that I have finished it, it is only natural that I should look for a position.

"But, oh! I think that's the worst thing in the world! I study the papers every day, and all the advertisements read, 'Experienced only need apply.' I also wrote to fourteen places and I received answers from five, three of which said to call. When I called I was offered $4 a week, and when I asked if I could advance myself to a bookkeeper's position I was told that their bookkeepers receive $10 and $15, and that you must work there fifteen years before you can become a bookkeeper.

"Another place where I called the manager asked me how much experience I had (although I expressly said in all my applications that I just finished a course in a business college). And when I said I hadn't any experience, he told me I wasn't a bookkeeper until I had had experience; and that they had no positions for beginners.

"Now, isn't that disheartening? I wonder where the experienced got their first positions. Nobody wants to be 'stuck' with a beginner. At present my prospects are very dark. It certainly does look as if I'm never going to get a position. And I would so love to work, because then I could continue my studies in college at night, to become an accountant.

"Ask business men to please give beginners a chance to show what they can do. I'm sure there are many beginners who know just as much and perhaps more than experienced bookkeepers."

THIS letter speaks for itself, and in spite of the fact that America is the busiest place in the world just now, and that the demand for laborers of all kinds is said to be greater than the demand for positions, this letter indicates that the unemployed still exist in our midst.

There ought to be some systematic arrangement made by business colleges or by charitable people interested in the welfare of students whereby positions could be obtained by graduates from these institutions.

Some of the money which Mr. Carnegie has put into his library foundation would be well expended in an effort of this kind. For instance, a fund might be provided, which would be devoted to the partial support of those scholars who graduated with the best records from business colleges.

Money Spent in Benevolent Enterprises Not Always Used to Best Advantage

With such a fund a young woman might be enabled to accept a position which offered her only $4 a week until she was sufficiently experienced to earn more. There is so much money spent in America in charity and in benevolent enterprises, but it is not always spent with wisdom or to good ends.

Never in the history of the world were so many good, unselfish people interesting themselves in altruistic enterprises and giving time, strength, energy and money in an effort to benefit humanity as at the present time. While this young woman is waiting for such a society as the one mentioned above to be organized she can benefit herself greatly by looking into the metaphysical thought of the day and realizing that within herself exists the power to be, to do and to have whatever she desires.

The mind is a magnet, and properly focused and held to its purpose must bring that which we desire.

You will be what you will to be;
Let failure find its false content
In that poor word "environment,"
But spirit scorns it, and is free.

It masters time, it conquers space;
It cows that boastful trickster Chance,
And bids the tyrant Circumstance
Uncrown and fill a servant's place.

The human Will, that force unseen,
The offspring of a deathless soul,
Can hew the way to any goal,
Though walls of granite intervene.

Be not impatient in delay,
But wait as one who understands;
When Spirit rises and commands,
The gods are ready to obey.

The river seeking for the sea
Confronts the dam and precipice,
Yet knows it cannot fail or miss;
You will be what you will to be!

More Truth Than Poetry

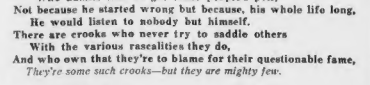
By James J. Montague

The Alibiers

NOW and then they get the goods on a defaulter—
An exception to the common run of scamps—
Who declares it isn't true that his thievery was due
To the sparkle of the incandescent lamps.
Now and then they send to prison an absconder
Who admits that he's to blame for his disgrace,
And who never makes the wail that he'd still be out of jail
If it wasn't for the woman in the case.

HERE and there you find a broken alcoholic
Who has still a fair acquaintance with the truth.
And who does not swear his fall wasn't caused by alcohol,
But by bad associations in his youth.
You occasionally see a hard-faced gambler
Who has found the cards against him in the game
And who doesn't say his wife was the ruin of his life
Or declare his foolish parents were to blame.

NOW and then you run across an honest rascal
Who admits that he got other people's pelf,
Not because he started wrong but because, his whole life long,
He would listen to nobody but himself.
There are crooks who never try to saddle others
With the various rascalities they do,
And who own that they're to blame for their questionable fame,
They're some such crooks—but they are mighty few.



Some Changer

Not only has Mr. Wilson changed his own mind on preparedness, but he seems to have changed the mind of his party on the one-term plank in the Baltimore platform.

Mere Suicidal Mania

Nobody will believe the Haytians' assertion that they are sufficiently intelligent for self-government as long as they make attacks on United States marines.
